

Iowa's Flood At Peak

Crest Stage Expected To Hold 12 Hours

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa—(AP)—The swollen Cedar River's turbulent downstream race apparently reached its peak at Iowa's second largest city this morning.

But vigilance and watchful waiting were the next steps as the river was expected to hold its crest stage for as long as 12 hours. This would exert terrific pressure on temporary levees.

At 8:30 a.m., the river level reached 19.54 feet—6½ feet above flood stage—but the rate of rise has slowed appreciably.

This level was below even the revised 20-foot crest forecast by the U.S. Geological Survey late Thursday. If the river holds at its present level, it will not reach the record high of 20.01 feet in the disastrous 1929 flood here.

The Red Cross estimated that 4,800 persons moved from their homes. The relief agency set up emergency shelters in two schools, but only 75 persons took advantage of them last night. The other evacuees apparently moved in with friends or relatives.

No major breaks were reported in the emergency levees, although some seepage had taken place. Two danger spots developed this morning.

One was near the large Quaker Oats plant on the east side of the river, which divides the city, and the other was almost directly across the river on the west side, where levees were quite soggy.

Authorities appealed for fresh volunteer workers to relieve those who had worked along the dikes throughout the night. Cedar Rapids taxi companies offered free transportation to those volunteering.

Find Cache Of Tinted Oil Pictures

A number of tinted pictures, the type which were being sold over the area by a man recently for whom a warrant has been issued, have been recovered by the Sheriff's department. They are now being kept in the Sheriff's office.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax reported most of those which were located in a house at 1407 South Ohio, are believed to belong to persons in Kansas, Oklahoma and Western Missouri. However, a complete check has not been made. Some may belong to persons in the Sedalia area.

Deputy Sheriff Jack Couts recovered the pictures Thursday afternoon in the house which had been rented by the man during his activities in this area. The man would contact a family in which a death had recently occurred and sell them on the idea of taking a picture from a snapshot, enlarge it and have it tinted in natural colors.

One order alone called for two pictures, both which appeared very amateurish and the cost was $87.50.

Sheriff Fairfax said that those on which there are order blanks with address of the owners of the pictures will be contacted by letter so they can reclaim their picture.

UN Command Standby Order For Aircraft

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The U.N. command today ordered aircraft on a standby alert for a possible troop airlift to Katanga, where Katanga's army captured the leftist rebel enclave of Manono.

Routine U.N. flights from Leopoldville's airport were canceled by order of U.N. military commander Gen. Sean McKeown.

The only official reason given for the sudden cancellation of the flights was that the planes may be needed for military purposes.

Production Underway At Local Plant

Engineering Firm Turns Out First Item In Sedalia

American Engineering Company rolled its first piece of acoustical equipment off the assembly line at 1 p.m. today at the firm's newly constructed plant on south Highway 65 at Green Ridge Road.

The plant, still partially under construction, put out its first model five weeks after groundbreaking ceremonies were held Feb. 24.

First effort for the new plant was an acoustical unit which will be shipped to Colby Junior High School, Colby, Kan. The unit was painted black and gold in honor of the state of Missouri and Sedalia.

Robert W. Patterson, American's president and owner, said the employment at the plant should total from 25 to 30 persons by this summer. When full production is reached in two to three years, Patterson said he hopes to employ some 200 persons.

"Our company's orders are backing up to an all-time high," Patterson stated. "This first unit is a milestone in our progress toward a top spot in the acoustical industry."

At present only 12 persons are employed at the plant, mostly supervisory personnel. Jerry Richter, production manager, and Charles Iserhardt, comptroller, are assisting Patterson in getting the company started.

The main manufacturing plant, built by Tempel-Callison Co., local contractors, is of rigid frame open span construction with painted metal sidewalls. A 2,000 square foot masonry building will be constructed adjacent to the main (Please turn to page 2, column 4)

Space Pioneer Joe Walker

X-15 Pilot Gives Details Of 31-mile High Flight

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Joe Walker, X-15 pilot who rode the rocket ship higher than man has ever flown before, describes the sensation 31 miles up this way:

"You feel like you're beginning to get out there where some day you'll see both sides of the old ball."

Too much cloud cover hampered Walker's view on Thursday's record flight, but it was still a thrill.

"I'm almost positive," he said, "that I could see all of the California coastline and portions of the Baja California (Mexico) coast."

Walker achieved the peak altitude of 165,000 feet with the X-15's powerful new engine at three-quarter throttle. An X-15 with a smaller engine set the old record of 136,500 feet last year.

A series of mishaps caused Walker some anxious moments. First, he lost his cabin pressure seven minutes before the rocket ship was due to be dropped from the wing of the B-52 mother ship.

Then the rocket engine stalled and it was several seconds before Walker was able to get it started again.

"It felt like five hours," he said. On the way down he ran into mysterious buffeting at about 80,000 feet.

B-52 Bomber Crash Kills Two Crewmen

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)—An $8-million dollar B-52G jet bomber failed in an aerial refueling rendezvous and apparently disintegrated in flight near here Thursday night.

Two of the eight-man crew parachuted safely, two were killed and four are missing.

The big ship developed trouble during a rendezvous with a tanker plane at more than 30,000 feet.

The crew members who parachuted safely are Maj. W. F. Minnich, 40, of Des Plaines, Ill., and 1st Lt. G. C. Farnham, 26, of Loveland, Colo.

An explosion apparently occurred while the plane was still in the air.

Air Force Col. O. V. Jones, commander of the Strategic Air Command Wing at Seymour Johnson AFB, Goldsboro, N. C., told newsmen after talking to Minnich and Farnham that the bomber was "in the observation position 100 to 200 feet behind and below the tanker but never made contact."

He said the tanker did not discharge any fuel.

Firm Stand By US On Laos Cease-Fire

Crisis Scene Shifted To W. Germany

Warsaw Pact Powers Contend West Is Waging Arms Race

MOSCOW — (AP) — The Soviet-led Warsaw Pact powers today said the West is continuing to wage an arms race and announced they are strengthening their defenses.

The eight-nation Communist military counterpart of NATO singled out West Germany as a "major hotbed of war danger" in a declaration that skimmed over strife-ridden Laos and the Congo.

While making the usual plea for "peaceful coexistence" and complete disarmament, the Communist nations announced they had "agreed on measures which they find it necessary to take in the interests of further consolidation of their defense potential and strengthening peace throughout the world."

Coming after three days of talks in the Kremlin amid the usual complete secrecy, the communique was surprisingly mild in tone but appeared to pinpoint Germany as the next pressure point in the East-West test of nerves.

Some Western diplomats believed the mild tone indicated Soviet Premier Khrushchev still wants to pick up coexistence relations with the Kennedy administration. While the United States was mentioned as one of the Western Big Three behind the rearming of West Germany, it was not singled out for the sort of attack that was routine in the later days of the Eisenhower administration.

The conference communique mentioned Laos only as one site of what it called "bloody outrages of colonialism" in Africa, Asia and Latin America.

This was expected, since the Warsaw Pact covers only the Communist nations of Eastern Europe and Communist China and other Asian nations attend only as observers. But it was assumed that during the discussions in the Kremlin, Khrushchev outlined the Soviet reply expected this week to the British proposal for a cease-fire in the Indochinese kingdom as the first step in neutralizing the strategic jungle buffer state.

Informed sources said the Soviets are likely to come up with a counterplan insisting that a cease-fire be worked out only after an international conference on Laos gets underway.

UN Assembly Presses For Session End

99-Nation Group Limiting Itself To Symbolic Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The General Assembly pressed today to end its cleanup session by April 21 after Soviet-American agreement to shelve debate on disarmament cleared the main obstacle to early adjournment.

The Assembly still faced a heavy schedule bristling with cold war items.

But informed sources said the 99-nation assembly probably would speed things up by limiting itself to symbolic debate on such topics as Hungary, Tibet, the future of divided Korea and Soviet charges against U.S. reconnaissance flights.

Other main agenda items to be disposed of are the Congo question, on which debate still has several days to go, Portugal's administration of her African territory of Angola and Cuba's charges that the United States plans aggression against Fidel Castro's regime.

The Cuban item had been expected to generate considerable heat, but present indications are that the Soviet bloc will not take a very active role in the debate.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is scheduled to leave for Moscow tonight, apparently feeling nothing left on the docket is important enough to hold him in New York.

Conference Delayed For Red Proposal

Rusk Is Expected To Return From Talks With Nehru

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States is standing firm on its condition that the shooting first must stop in Laos before any international conference can be convened to neutralize the war-riddled Southeast Asian kingdom.

High official sources made this known today and said "a good hard look" would be given any proposal by the Soviet Union to delay a cease-fire until after a 14-nation conference on Laos is called.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Dean Rusk today returned from what he called a "highly productive" SEATO meeting on the Laos crisis and immediately prepared to report to President Kennedy.

Rusk was due to return at noon from his talks at New Delhi with India's Prime Minister Nehru and the Bangkok conference of foreign ministers of the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Rusk will give President Kennedy a first hand report of his talks with Nehru and the SEATO ministers over the Laos crisis.

The Laotian government reported a new outbreak of fighting Thursday but said the situation was not grave enough to warrant asking SEATO intervention.

There is speculation that New Delhi or Rangoon, the capital of neutral Burma, would be the site for the 14-nation conference if a power agreement is reached on a cease-fire.

U.S. strategists gave more than an even chance to the prospects for a political settlement of the fighting in Laos between the pro-Western royal government and the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

But there was no solid evidence that the Soviet Union would give a clear or concise answer to Western demands for the cease-fire.

The Soviet Union had been expected to make its position known by Thursday to British overtures for a political settlement in Laos. The reply did not come.

The delay was attributed by sources here to the need of Soviet Premier Khrushchev for consultations with Communist China and North Viet Nam before making a formal reply to Britain. A British note last weekend called for a cease-fire, reactivation of the three-nation international control commission (composed of India, Poland and Canada), followed by an international conference.

Moscow reports have indicated the Soviet Union may try to reverse this order, placing the conference first and the cease-fire last. The Chinese Communists and the Pathet Lao have denounced the cease-fire as an American plan to win time for the bolstering of the royal government forces.

It is understood on high authority here that an informal truce would be sufficient to set the negotiation machinery in motion. There is no desire to establish any rigid demarcation lines which would lead to a permanent partition of Laos into pro-Communist and anti-Communist sectors, informants said.

Churches Ready to Observe Easter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Easter will be observed Sunday with age-old church rites and with sunrise services in outdoor beauty spots ranging from mountain tops to canyon rims.

The occasion, marking the rise of Christ, is a joyous one in religious services.

It is a happy time in another sense too, for it usually marks the advent of spring weather and gives the church-goers a chance to appear in Easter parades.

In Washington, the famed cherry tree blossoms are expected to reach the height of their beauty by Sunday. The annual spring influx of tourists who want to see them has already begun.

President Kennedy and his family will be in Palm Beach over the Easter weekend and will not be on hand for the traditional Easter egg roll on the south lawn of the White House on Easter Monday.

Eleven major sunrise services are scheduled in and around the capital on Sunday, including one in Arlington National Cemetery and one with a carillon at the bell tower presented by the Netherlands.

Across the land, sunrise services will be conducted in natural settings such as the south rim of the Grand Canyon in Arizona and in the Garden of the Gods, near Colorado Springs, and the Park of Red Rocks, west of Denver.

One of the more colorful observances will begin Saturday night when the people of Fredericksburg, Tex., will light "Easter fires" in surrounding hills for the 114th year.

PASSOVER SCENE — Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, the famed Last Supper, is one of Christianity's outstanding artistic showpieces, but it actually illustrates the most joyous Jewish festival of all — Passover. The custom dates back to the pioneering era when early German settlers pacified children by telling them that the campfires of hostile Indians really were set by the Easter bunny to cook and dye their Easter eggs.

In another Texas event, Bill Daniel, recently appointed governor of Guam, will hide about 30,000 Easter eggs on his estate near Liberty and invite the children to find them. Between 5,000 and 6,000 youngsters are expected to be on hand from Texas and Louisiana.

One of the earliest outdoor Easter day services in the nation will be at 4:45 a.m. (Eastern Standard Time) in the Cathedral of the Pines atop a hill at Rindge, N.H. Observers at last year's service, attended by about 6,000 persons, noted automobile registration plates from 32 states.

Two hours later, more than 1,000 worshippers are expected to gather for a Protestant service on historic Boston Common.

Two hundred Boston area churches are cooperating in another sunrise service on Corey Hill in suburban Brookline.

Richard Cardinal Cushing will preach in an Easter Sunday mass to be carried nationally on NBC-TV at 11 a.m. from Boston's Cathedral of the Holy Cross.

In Philadelphia, the Redeemer Lutheran Church Sunday School has hired an airplane to tow a banner carrying the message: "Christ is risen. Believe in Him." The airplane will fly over the city Easter afternoon.

Archbishop Joseph Krol, new head of the Philadelphia Roman Catholic diocese, will preside over Easter services there for the first time.

A sunrise service to be held in North Philadelphia normally is attended by about 15,000 persons.

Thousands of persons are expected to attend a Chicago sunrise service—the first religious (Please turn to Page 2, Col. 6)

Holdup Men Rob Two Of Life's Savings

NEW YORK (AP) — Two hold-up men, posing as detectives, early today robbed a delicatessen owner and his wife of their life savings — $5,000 in cash and $1,000 worth of jewelry.

The delicatessen owner, John Williams, 40, a Negro, told police the men made him open a safe in his apartment where the money and jewels were kept.

The robbers forced their way into the apartment.

The firm is presently producing convective components for the reduction and control of sound in air distribution systems. For example, sound absorbers placed in the ducting of both heating and air conditioning units which utilize the movement of air for temperature control.

It was pointed out that the tremendous boom in the air-conditioning industry is boosting industries such as American. Demands for increased air-conditioning products create a need for larger and larger sound reduction units to muffle the noise of such machines, Patterson said.

Bunny Pays Easter Visit To Children

A real live Easter bunny with big floppy ears and a little fuzzy cotton tail visited the Crippled Children's Center Thursday morning with the Women of the Moose, who helped the bunny deliver the Easter baskets.

The bunny was pink and created a great deal of interest as it walked through the hospital to the Center. Everybody was coming out of doors and saying: "Oh, look, the Easter bunny!"

The youngsters at the Center had learned the little song "Peter Cottontail" and when the teacher said: "Here comes Peter Peter Cottontail" and the bunny appeared in the door, the youngsters burst out singing their song.

They were delighted with the bunny and everytime it moved its head its big ears flopped and the youngsters laughed. One little boy tried to reach the ears but he never quite made it.

"That isn't the real Easter bunny," said a young doubting Thomas, "it's too big."

But another was just as sure it was. "Sure it is," he said, "look at its tail."

A real cottontail—sure, it had to be the real Easter bunny, the others agreed.

The slide occurred near Babylar, the tragic ground where the Nazis massacred tens of thousands of Jews and Ukrainians during World War II.

Rumors of the disaster have circulated in Moscow for the past two weeks. The report in the Kiev Pravda was the first confirmation.

It has not been mentioned by the Moscow papers, the Soviet news agency Tass or by the Soviet radio.

Pravda of the Ukraine said workmen were trying to fill in a ravine partially filled with water, but their technique was faulty. The water washed out one side of the ravine about 8:30 a.m., sending the earth rolling down into an inhabited area and devastating about 75 acres.

The slide destroyed 39 houses, two workers' barracks, a streetcar depot, an experimental construction plant and a municipal store yard.

His Last Words...

EDITOR'S NOTE — In an unadorned statement of fact, St. Luke put on public record one of the most significant events of human history. In this last of a series on Christ's last words by nationally prominent clergymen, a Roman Catholic archbishop shows how Christ's final sigh was "a triumph of failure."

By THE MOST REV. KARL J. ALTER
Written for the Associated Press

"It is consummated."

St. Luke described the climactic moment of Christ's death on the cross in terse but vivid language:

"It was about the sixth hour and there was darkness over the whole land until the ninth hour. The sun was darkened, and the curtain of the Temple was torn in the middle. And Jesus cried out with a loud voice and said, 'Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit.'"

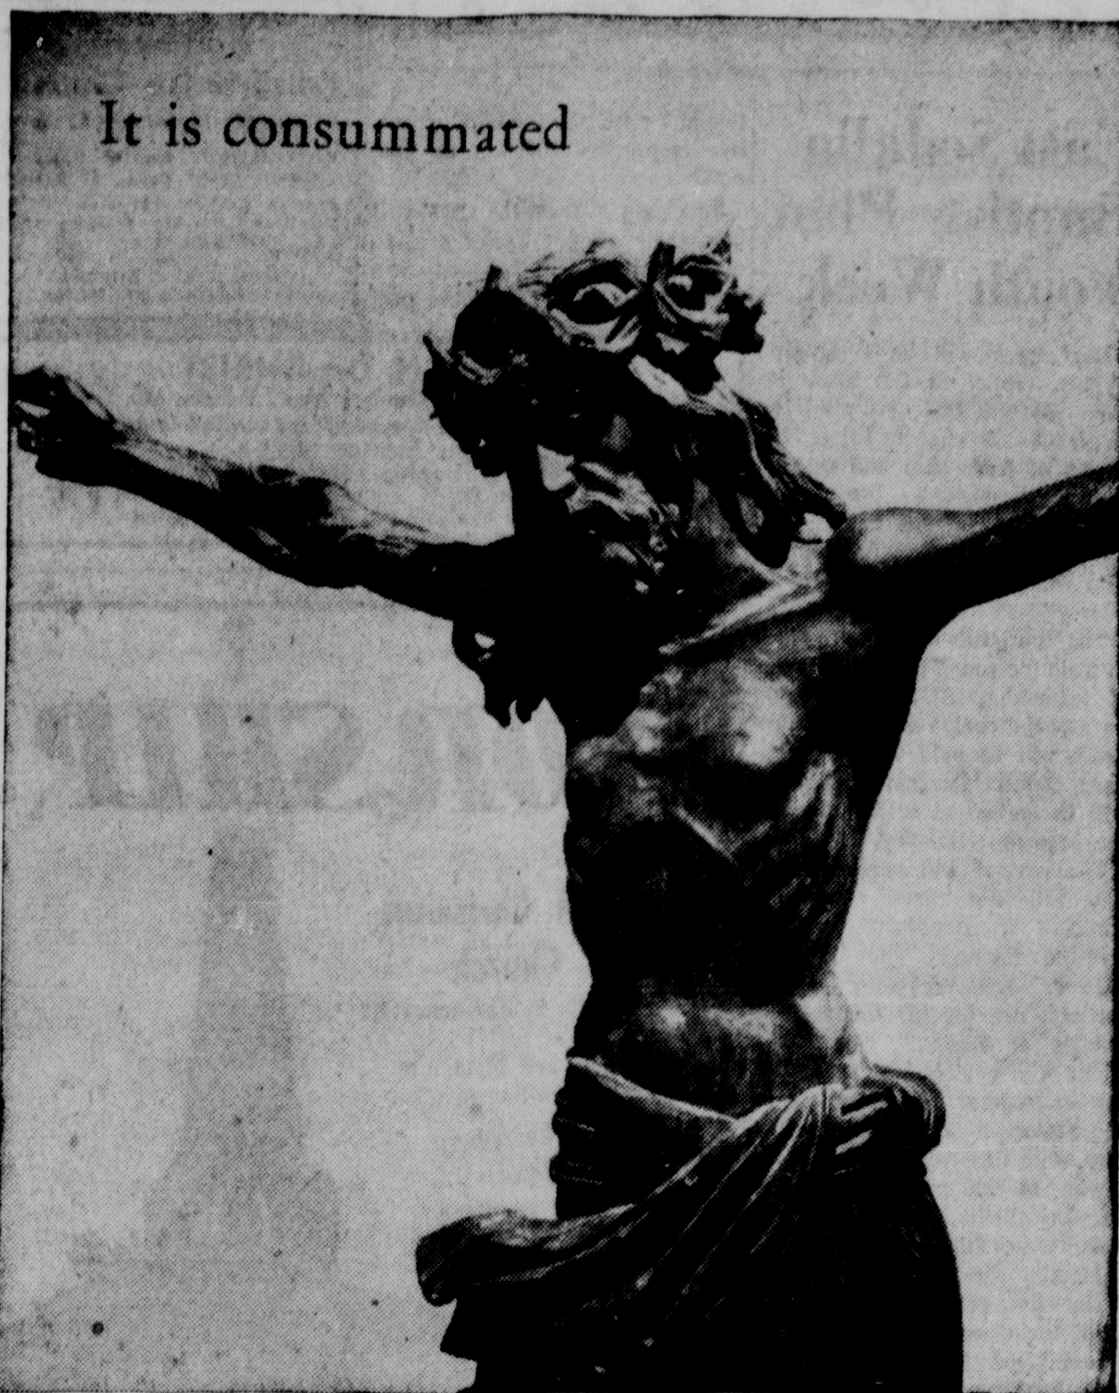

St. John reminds us of further details, as foreshadowed in the sixty-eighth psalm:

"There was standing there a vessel full of common wine; and having put a sponge soaked with the wine on a stalk of hyssop, they put it to his mouth. Therefore, when Jesus had taken the wine, he said, 'It is consummated!' And bowing his head, he gave up his spirit."

In this simple, unadorned statement of fact, the most significant event of all human history is put on public record. The ineffable mystery of the Redemption is summed up in a phrase: "It is consummated."

Christian people have always looked upon Christ's death on the cross as a triumph of failure. To the immediate witnesses of his crucifixion, Christ's life seemed to end in defeat and disaster. To succeeding generations, however, the cross spells a spiritual victory over the force of violence; it represents the triumph of good over evil, of love over hatred.

When Christ spoke his final words from the cross, "It is consummated," his sojourn on earth seemed to be prematurely ended; but his sublime mission had been gloriously achieved. It was a mission meant to portray divine truth, goodness and beauty — not in the abstract phrases of philosophy, but in the concrete form of living personality. It was a mission of infinite mercy, by which, in a divine paradox, the Son of God invested himself with human weakness, in order to lift up man to the majestic stature of the divine likeness. It was a mission of reconciliation, whereby the wall of separation between heaven and earth would be broken down, and the indictment of guilt, as St. Paul calls it, be blotted out. It was an act of sublime self-surrender to the will of his heavenly Father to atone for the willful disobedience of his brothers in the flesh. It was not a manifestation of impotent weakness, as his enemies charged. It was a voluntary surrender unto death, in order that we who were dead in sin might live unto justice. Christ made this clear in his own words:

"I lay down my life that I may take it up again. No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of myself." (John 10:17-18)

When we contemplate the bitter agony of Christ in the garden of Gethsemane, his bloody scourging in the court of Pilate, his cruel death on the cross, we become aware that sin has its price. It is assumed all too often that the violation of the moral order does not carry with it a penalty as in the violation of the physical order. The consequences may be different, less immediate, and less apparent; but they are no less certain. Treason, lust, gluttony, deceit and hypocrisy impose penalties, as surely as fire burns and

ARCHBISHOP KARL J. ALTER

THE MOST REV. KARL J. ALTER, Archbishop of Cincinnati, is a leading Roman Catholic author and spokesman in a wide range of social and civic matters. He has headed various Catholic welfare organizations and was a member of the Ohio welfare department's advisory committee. He was ordained a priest in 1910 after studying at St. Mary's Seminary in Cleveland, consecrated a bishop in 1931 and elevated to archbishop in 1950.

positive sins of all mankind that led to the cross; but the cross in turn led to victory over sin and death. No wonder, when the deed was done, Christ could cry out with exultant voice but with a sigh of relief:

"It is consummated."

An Early Easter Fails to Boost Sales at Stores

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Despite the earlier Easter this year, department store sales in the Tenth Federal Reserve District for last week showed no change from the corresponding week a year ago.

The Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank said sales volume in Kansas slipped 5 per cent below a year ago and western Missouri was down 1 per cent. Nationwide, sales were up 6 per cent. Figures for Missouri and Kansas cities included: Joplin up 17 per cent; St. Joseph down 30; Wichita minus 4; Topeka minus 11. Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., together showed a loss of 1 per cent and downtown Kansas City a drop of 9 per cent.

Anti-Red Society

John Birch Group Causing Attorney General Concern

WASHINGTON (AP)—The John Birch Society, a conservative anti-Communist organization, has become "a matter of concern to the attorney general," a Justice Department spokesman said today.

Asked if the department planned any action, the spokesman said, "A growing number of inquiries which the Justice Department has received about the John Birch Society has made it a matter of concern to the attorney general." He declined to go beyond that brief statement.

There was no direct comment from Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the President.

Members of both the House and Senate denounced the organization Thursday and called for investigations of its leaders. Several senators have been attacked in letter-writing campaigns by society members.

The most caustic criticism centered around the society's founder, Robert Welch, who is said to have called former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and others Communists.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover spoke out today against "reckless charges" and "vigilante action" in a signed editorial in the FBI law enforcement bulletin.

Hoover did not mention the John Birch Society, and FBI spokesmen declined comment on whether the society was an intended target.

Hoover wrote: "The job of curtailing and containing communism is one for legally constituted authorities with the steadfast cooperation of every loyal citizen."

"This is neither the time for inaction nor vigilante action. Attributing every adversity to communism is not only irrational, but contributes to hysteria and fosters groundless fears."

The Birch society was founded in 1948 by Welch, a retired candy manufacturer from Belmont, Mass. It has active chapters in almost every part of the country. The society is named for a Baptist missionary who served as an Army intelligence officer in the Far East in World War II. The society says Birch was killed by Chinese Communists 10 days after the end of the war.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., told a reporter he would ask the Senate Internal Security subcommittee to investigate the society and its leaders. Dodd joined Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif., in denouncing the organization Thursday in the Senate.

Dodd, a member of the subcommittee who often serves as its acting chairman, is one of the Senate's most outspoken anti-Communists.

Kuchel said Welch has called Eisenhower "a card-carrying Communist" and that this is "a fantastic and incredible libel."

"Good God," Kuchel said, "should the American people permit this kind of spleen to be poured on a man who has dedicated his whole life to freedom?" He said Chief Justice Earl Warren was "another great American" the society has tried to besmirch.

Kuchel, who has been attacked by the society himself, said Welch should be called before a Senate committee and asked the basis for "these miserable charges." The committee, he said, should "make him apologize, not alone to Eisenhower and Warren, but to the people of this country."

Dodd said Welch's charges against Eisenhower, Warren, former Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman and others are "an affront to both decency and intelligence."

Meanwhile a House member, Rep. Edgar W. Hiestand, R-Calif., acknowledged that he is a member of the Birch society.

Hiestand said other members of Congress probably are too, but he felt they should have the right to decide for themselves whether to acknowledge this. As for himself, Hiestand said, "I'm not ashamed to admit that I'm one of them."

ATTENDANCE RECORD
JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Irvin G. Hildebrand, 80, probably holds some sort of record for attendance at school board meetings. Since 1910 Hildebrand has attended some 595 monthly sessions of the Conemaugh Township School Board, missing only about five times.

A retired steelworker, Hildebrand explains that "Besides keeping up on school business, I just like to go to the meetings." He has 8 children, 12 grandchildren and 9 great grandchildren.

Town Standsby As Two Rivers Continue Rise

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — The Weather Bureau put Hattiesburg residents on a standby basis for evacuation of lowlying areas Thursday night as the Leaf and Bouie rivers continued to rise.

The city, located in southeast Mississippi, hasn't yet completed mopping up operations from disastrous flooding five weeks ago which left 5,000 homeless and three dead.

National Guard units were alerted to begin evacuation details on short notice. Already some 115 families, mostly Negroes have fled to higher ground.

Radio station WHSY, extensively damaged by the February flooding, went off the air and started moving all its equipment to higher ground.

The Weather Bureau said downpours expected in a severe thunderstorm alert extending until dawn Friday would probably make the rivers rise faster.

Judge Declares 73 Dogs Just Too Many Barks

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—In answer to complaints by 10 neighbors, Dist. Judge Paine L. Bush held Thursday that 73 dogs are just too many around one home.

The neighbors asked an injunction forcing Mr. and Mrs. W. Rex Cromwell to reduce their canine flock to two within a month. They protested against repeated barking and said conditions were unsanitary.

Judge Bush told lawyers for both sides to work out a solution by Monday or "I will then render my own decision."

While the neighbors contended the Cromwells had 100 to 300 dogs, Mrs. Cromwell told the court "as of right now there are 73." She inherited 211 dogs at her mother's death five years ago, Mrs. Cromwell said and "I had 42 of my own at the time."

She added there are personality problems in reducing the number. "I must find the right family for the right dog," Mrs. Cromwell said. "If the dog is not a happy dog, then the family won't be happy."

Find Philanthropy Spirit Is Steady in Slack Times

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The spirit of giving is strong in the land. The portion of income people donate declines less in slack times than do incomes themselves.

The spirit of giving unto others may burn brighter on Good Friday, at Easter and other times of religious emphasis, but the flame holds fairly even the year through.

Last Supper Joyous Time For Jewish

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP) — Was the Last Supper a happy occasion? Hardly, from the Christian point of view. But actually Jesus was celebrating with his apostles the most joyous Jewish festival of them all—Passover.

The bread He blessed and broke was an unleavened water, the matzos of the Jews. The wine He drank likewise was an integral part of the Passover meal, or seder, then as it is today.

St. Matthew writes that Jesus and the apostles went to the Mount of Olives "after singing the Passover hymn."

The Passover hymn was, and is today, composed of Psalms 113-118, the Egyptian songs of praise. They begin with the word hallelujah—a Hebrew word meaning "praise the Lord;" a word Christians associate with the Resurrection rather than the passion. Jews call this portion of the Passover meal the hallel, the first part of the word which means simply "praise."

It is no accident that Easter and Passover come close to the same time each year.

Jews begin the Passover celebration (it lasts eight days) on the 14th day of the Jewish month of Nisan which begins about a week before the first full moon of spring. Easter falls on the first Sunday after the same full moon.

Passover begins with two seders, this evening and Saturday evening. These are meals, like the one Jesus ate. Seder is a Hebrew word for order; the order of the ritual—and it's quite a ritual.

There are 14 steps, and the meal can last as long as five hours or more.

The whole procedure is called a Haggadah, the Hebrew word for "retelling." That is what Passover is—an annual retelling of the deliverance of the Jews from the Egyptians; the story of how they "passed over" from slavery to freedom.

Each part of the Haggadah is significant to the story. The matzos for instance, remind the Jews how their ancestors had to clear out of Egypt even before the bread had a chance to rise. Bitter herbs (usually horseradish) are eaten to remind them of the bitterness of slavery.

The Old Testament tells how Moses commanded the annual observance so the story could be passed unfaithfully from father to son. It also tells how, when the exodus was over, "Moses and the children of Israel sang this song"—history's first song of freedom. Consequently song has been an essential part of the Haggadah since the beginning.

Passover is a family celebration—observed in the home rather than the synagogue (as Jesus celebrated it in the upper room), and the songs may vary from house to house.

Dr. A. W. Binder, professor of music at Hebrew Union College, says most Passover songs sung today, other than the ancient psalms, date from about the Middle Ages.

W. Meyer to Talk At Kingdom Hall

"The Sacred Bible, and Our Problem of Survival," will be the title of a talk given by W. Meyer, at Kingdom Hall Sunday at 3 p.m. Meyer is a minister and a representative of the Watchtower Society. This talk is a special one, as it will be given in 21,008 congregations of Jehovah's witnesses in 179 different lands throughout the world.

Following this talk will be the Watchtower study, drawn from the Feb. 15, issue drawing its title from Neh. 8:10 which is, "Hold Fast Your Joy!"

Where does the money come from? Much of it can't be charted. But the association estimates that individuals contribute $6.5 billion, corporations and other business firms $420 million, charitable bequests $570 million and various foundations $710 million.

One source for the estimate of corporate giving is the deduction for contributions in income tax returns. Corporations are credited with accounting for more than one-third of the total giving to United Funds and Community Chests.

Sunrise Communion Services at Epworth Methodist on Sunday

A sunrise communion service will be held at the Epworth Methodist at 6 o'clock Easter Sunday morning. The organist will be Mrs. Ralph Brewer. Mrs. John Fair will sing "Where Jesus Prayed Alone" as the solo. The minister, the Rev. H. E. Trevathan, will deliver the meditation.

The regular morning worship service begins at 10:30 o'clock. The organist, Mrs. Ralph Brewer, will play "Crown Him with Many Crowns" as the prelude and "The Lord Is My Shepherd" as the offertory. The choir will sing the anthem "Easter Song." The postlude will be "Hosannas Ring."

The minister will conduct worship services at the Buena Vista Rest Home at 2:30 o'clock.

The official board of the church will meet Tuesday evening for its regular monthly business session.

Point System for Drivers

One piece of legislation that affects everyone who drives an automobile pertains to the "Point System" for driver improvement. Perhaps not as much emphasis has been placed on this program as should be.

Prudent drivers will not oppose it, perhaps not even discuss it, even though it has their approval. But the perennial careless driver who is extremely vulnerable to the provisions of the point system will be among the highly vocal oppositionists. His legislator will hear from him, now that the Bill has passed.

Salient points of the point system bill introduced by the Senator, of Troy, are worth reviewing. This bill establishes a method of assigning specified demerit points for conviction of traffic violations in accordance with the seriousness of the violation. It sets out a program of action to be taken upon the accumulation of certain totals of demerit points. This system gives the driver a method of knowing his standing concerning his driving privilege and gives him the chance to improve his driving and his attitude toward safety before he loses his license. Where these desirable behind-the-wheel behavior changes occur and the driver is not further convicted of violation over specified periods of time, the demerit points are reduced and will be erased after three years of conviction-free driving.

The bill provides that the Director shall notify the driver or chauffeur when he has accumulated four or more points within a twelve month period. This allows the driver to make an effort to improve before his demerit points reach the suspension total. The bill provides the driving privilege be suspended for not less than 30 days or more than 90 days when the driver or chauffeur has accumulated 8 points in 18 months. The driving privilege shall be revoked when he has accumulated 12 points in 12 months or 18 points in 24 months or 24 points in 36 months.

After suspension or revocation of the operator's or chauffeur's license the points shall be reduced to 6 upon reinstatement.

After the first full year of operation without conviction for a moving violation, a driver's accumulated points shall be reduced by one third. For the second consecutive full year of operation without conviction of a moving violation, the remaining total points shall be reduced by one half. The third consecutive year without such conviction shall erase the remaining demerit points.

Conviction for violation of state laws on leaving the scene of an accident, driving while suspended or revoked, driving under influence of intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs, or conviction for any felony involving the use of a motor vehicle are assigned 12 points and require revocation of the driving privilege. Other moving violations are assigned fewer points according to their seriousness.

This bill certainly has the merit of encouraging safe driving on Missouri highways.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Goldfine's Friends Desert Him

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — To understand the bizarre chain of human relations set off by the secret confession of vicuna coat-giving Bernard Goldfine you have to realize that the big Boston industrialist was a collector of VIP's. He collected important persons in the same way some people collect stamps.

And it's the manner in which Goldfine collected such big-shot friends as Sherman Adams, assistant to President Eisenhower; Senators Bridges and Cotton, New Hampshire Republicans; and ex-Gov. Foster Furcolo, Massachusetts Democrat, that has now caused the lid to blow off the Goldfine-Sherman Adams scandal. It has sent the FBI up to the Senate to interview the senators involved and has brought Adams scurrying to Washington from his retreat in New Hampshire.

Behind all this was the fact that when Goldfine came to Washington he liked to call at the White House, tell friends he lunched one table removed from Eisenhower.

In return for being seen with big shots, Goldfine gave handsomely — coats, suits, rugs, free liquor, free hotels, free travel, and sometimes generous amounts of cash.

This would all have been quite innocent were it not for the fact that simultaneous with his gift-giving, Goldfine expected favors in return. For instance, he got Sherman Adams, second most powerful man in Washington, to intervene at the Federal Trade Commission when the Goldfine Woolen Mills got into trouble for violating the wool-labeling act.

Immune From Taxes

Even more serious, Goldfine stopped paying income taxes about the time he began collecting big shots. He seemed to think that association with top men in government made him immune from the laws which others have to follow. And it's his income tax trial—recently postponed from March until May—which probably induced him to make a confession.

Prior to that, his svelte, efficient girl Friday, Mildred Papernan, had been deluging the VIP's who had been the recipients of Goldfine's generosity with frantic phone calls. She would wake Sen. Styles Bridges late at night with desperate, threatening phone calls.

"You've got to do something for Mr. B," she would scream. "You're a big shot. You've got influence. Don't tell me that a senator can't go down to the Justice Department and do something. You've got to do something for Mr. B after all he did for you."

A Republican senator, however, doesn't have much influence in a Democratic administration, and Sherman Adams today doesn't have any. Furthermore all the VIP's whom Goldfine once collected no longer want to be seen with him. They have run for cover.

So the genial, ungrammatical, generous son of a Russian immigrant who called Sherman Adams 43 times in six months and once kept President Eisenhower waiting almost an hour while he haggled over a textile contract at the Pentagon, found himself friendless and alone. Being alone, he decided to share his grief with his former friends, the VIP's. He shared it by talking to the Justice Department.

Here is the kind of relationship Goldfine enjoyed with the great and near great in the halcyon days of the Eisenhower administration.

When his daughter was married in Chicago, Goldfine insisted that Sherman Adams and Senator and Mrs. Cotton fly out to Chicago for the wedding.

"I want people to see who my friends are," he urged. "You've got to do this for me."

And shortly after Furcolo was elected governor of Massachusetts, Goldfine gave a party for him at the Mayflower Hotel at Plymouth, Mass. Both Senators Bridges and Cotton were guests, with the big woolen manufacturer paying their expenses to the tune of about $175 each.

Senator Cotton was quite frank in telling the FBI that when he was about to depart on a trip to Tokyo and Hong Kong, Goldfine insisted that he take $500 with him.

"We have a superstition among Jewish people," he explained. "We believe in presents. Bring me back a present from Hong Kong."

Again, when Cotton and his wife left on a trip to Panama and Mexico City, Goldfine had dinner with them in the Parker House in Boston and gave the senator $1,000.

Cotton at that time was attorney for the Goldfine Woolen Mills and a director of the corporation, so that his position was somewhat different from that of Sherman Adams or the others who had no professional connection. As long as Cotton, as a senator, did no favors for Goldfine with the government or made no representations to the government on behalf of Goldfine, he had no conflict of interest.

Adams, however, was not in that position. This is why the new Attorney General, Robert Kennedy, may have one of the hottest criminal cases in a good many years dumped into his lap.

What Kennedy can do or may do will be reported in an early column.

Merry-Go-Round

Kennedy's proposed fireside chats have stirred up a rumpus in the radio and TV industry. Republicans are demanding equal time to answer, but the radio-TV networks don't know whether to use Nixon, Senator Dirksen, conservative Senator Goldwater, or liberal Gov. Rockefeller to answer Kennedy. Whoever they select would have a leg up on the 1964 nomination which puts the networks in the position of materially helping to nominate the GOP candidate. . . . The Air Force is quietly circulating portions of the Steve Canyon comic strip to its information officers showing how Steve has been handling British opposition to American radar construction. A Toronto newspaper canceled the strip because of the radar story. But the Air Force, in a bulletin to information officers, happily pointed out that the paper's own editorial staff raised such a howl the Steve Canyon strip was reinstated.

Think It Through

By E. F. HUTTON

THE BISHOPS -vs- THE PRESIDENT—Perhaps the chief "plus" in Kennedy's win over Nixon is that a predominately Protestant country is no longer afraid to elect a Catholic President.

Further proof that former fears were largely baseless is shown by the fact that a large group of Catholic clergy oppose a course which Mr. Kennedy seems to favor, of trying to solve practically all problems by political action, chiefly from Washington.

Mr. Kennedy's blueprint is, of course, opposed to all that Thomas Jefferson stood for, and can only lead to totalitarian government. In fact, the question should be asked of today's centralizers of power: "Between where we are now, and where Hitler took his people, where do you propose to STOP?"

Five U. S. Cardinals and 272 other Roman Catholic Bishops are, in effect, asking that question, and calling for a reversal of the trend.

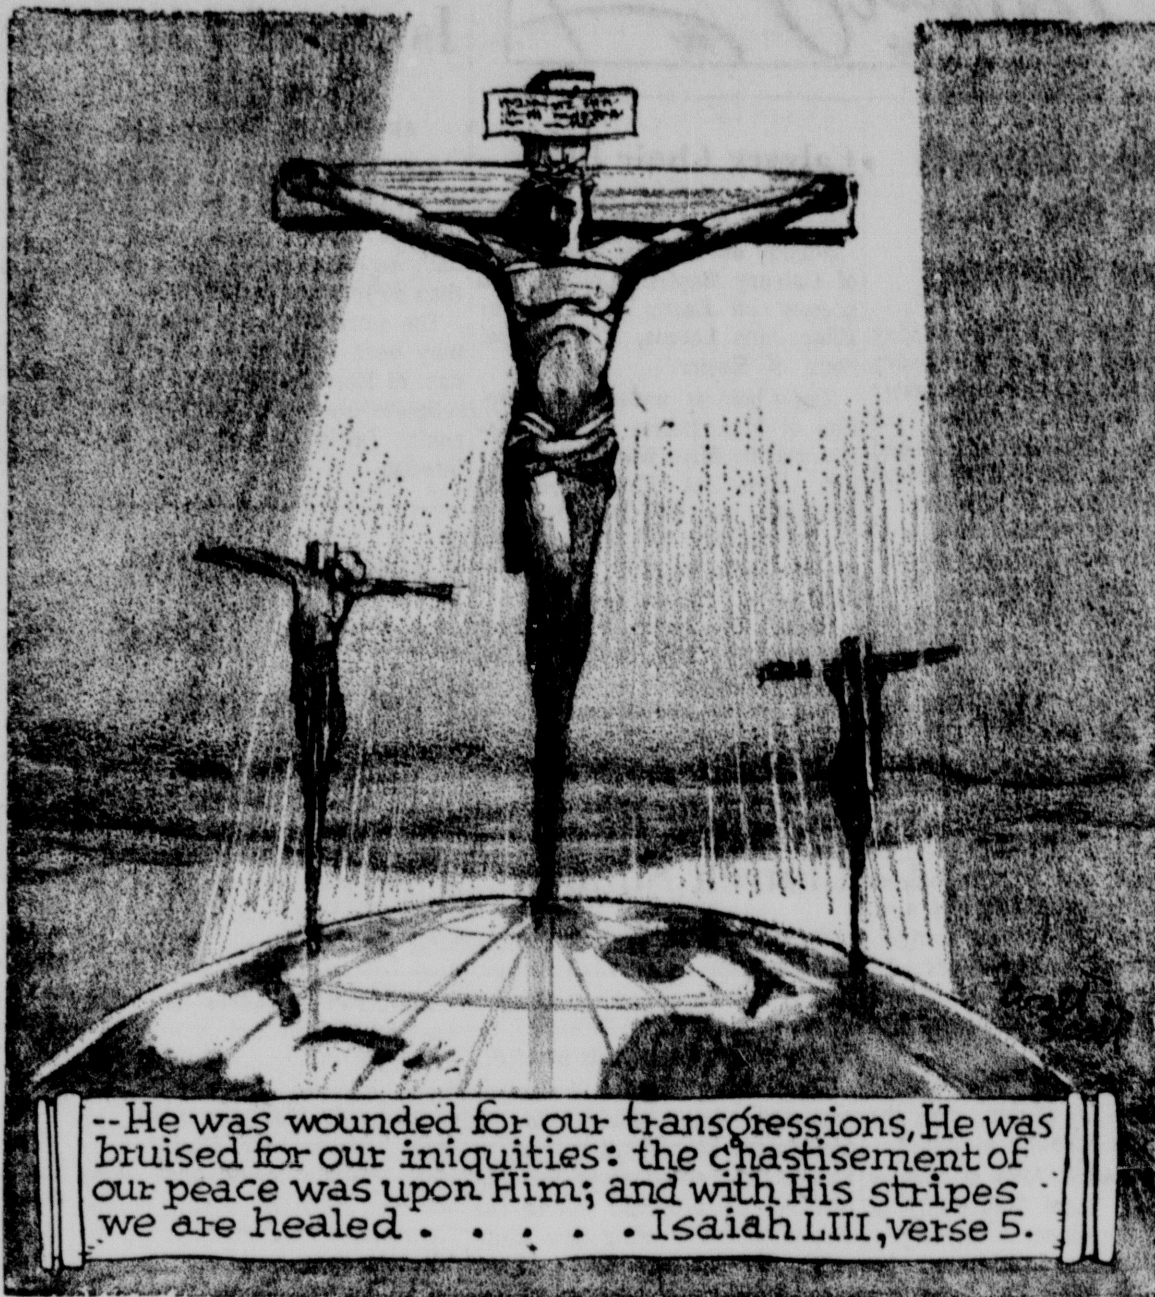

"Pressures are growing," they say, "for a constantly greater reliance on the collectivity (government) rather than on the individual. . . . An inordinate demand for benefits. . . . has led to an ever-growing number of our people to relinquish their rights and to abdicate their responsibilities."

For example, they believe that education is best served when "it is locally controlled and locally supported."

Long before we got too smart and modern to listen to patriots like Washington and Jefferson, our first President said, "Government should be watched like fire, — a good servant but a fearful master."

It is good to hear similar expressions again.

And It Was the Third Hour . . .

The World Today

An Agreement Won't Stop the Reds

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's problem with communism is like inviting a man to dinner and then trying to make sure he doesn't stick the silverware in his pocket.

Even a not-likely-soon American-Soviet agreement on disarmament and nuclear testing—something the optimists would like to think means peace—won't keep the Communists from doing what they're doing.

They're men with a mission and what they're doing is trying to take over the world. Since they're convinced they have time on their side, they're not in a hurry. If they can't do it all at once, they can try a bit at a time.

For instance, don't bet that peace, if it comes to Laos, will last long. The shooting by the Russian-backed guerrillas in the north would not necessarily start up soon.

But the Communists would be infiltrating the rest of Laos, trying for a grab from within. Or, they could try it with shooting if they first create a crisis somewhere else to distract the West and take up its energies.

And even though things quiet down in Laos indefinitely, there are always other places. Southeast Asia and the Middle East, for example. Southeast Asia is full of such places.

At the moment Kennedy's prestige seems high in the world. He acts like a quietly tough young man who has nothing but good will for the rest of mankind but won't stand still to be bulldozed.

The Russians and Red Chinese can't stand too much of that. Anytime Kennedy begins to look like too much of a world-persuader—meaning persuading away from communism—they'll try to give him the miseries.

In this case it would mean creating for him a series of crises, rocking and socking him, keeping busy, distracted, and running around with a fire-hose to put out blazes in a dozen places.

A tremendous Red Chinese attack on Formosa—creating concern in this country not only for Formosa but over the prospect of getting into war in China—would be a nice distraction for a push somewhere else.

True, Kennedy is doing all he can to lay the ground for friendly dealings with Premier Khrushchev. And maybe they'll meet and get along fine.

And maybe the next time a brushfire war starts up some place there won't be a Russian in sight. That won't mean the Russians and the Chinese Communists aren't working out of sight.

They don't have to fire a shot. They can seduce with economic aid, by sending in industrial advisers who become political advisers, by bringing students from backward countries to Moscow and returning them home well-trained.

The West has no illusions and can do the same, of course. To some extent it will try. An example of trying is Kennedy's foreign aid program which he offered Congress a few days ago. He has no illusions about the future. That's why he told Congress in his defense message he wants an armed force that can fight limited wars, as well as big ones, including guerrilla fighters for the brush-fires.

In the end the greatest weapon on either side may turn out to be determination.

There's always the chance the Russians and Red Chinese will fall out. From behind the iron curtain they've let out stories about Chinese squabbles with Khrushchev because he's too soft.

That makes him—comparatively—look like a good guy. It might even induce the West to make concessions to encourage nice guys. But experts on communism say this is just an act, well thought out.

If this is a gloomy look at what is ahead—not only for Kennedy but for presidents after him—it remains for someone with a rosier view to come up with indisputable information to the contrary.

Foreign Policy Has Made No Change Leaders Insist

By Robert E. Hennessey

DP&R Special Service

WASHINGTON — "History will record this as one of the great moments of America and as a turning point in international affairs."

Those were the words of an African delegate to the United Nations after the United States, on the issue of Portuguese Angola, cast its first real anti-colonial vote of the post-war period.

Then, last Monday, Indian Prime Minister Nehru, long critical of many of our positions, said he saw a "marked change" for the "good" in U. S. foreign policy under President Kennedy.

About the same time, however, former President Eisenhower, lending support to Kennedy on the Laotian crisis, said: "United States foreign policy has not changed since World War II."

Who is right?

Both are right, according to State Department officers who were sounded out on the subject. In the broadest sense, Mr. Eisenhower was right, for there has not and will not, any time soon, be a fundamental change in American policy originated right after World War II to contain communism and build up the underdeveloped parts of the world that are most susceptible to Red penetration.

It is not this general policy which, over the years, has antagonized men like Nehru. It is how this policy is implemented that has caused us trouble with the non-communist center states. Laos and Africa are good examples where Kennedy has instituted new approaches.

In Laos, which has nothing anyone wants, it has been our policy all along to have a completely neutral government.

Yet, last year we refused to support the only government under which neutralism would have been possible and that government fell.

In December, the Russians proposed to us the reestablishment of this government but we rejected the proposal. Now, after three costly months during which rebel armies have overrun a goodly part of Laos, we are making identically the same proposal to Russia which she made to us. It was because our hands on Laos had not been completely clean that President Kennedy was prevented from taking the case to the United Nations where it belonged.

Europe was still quaking this week, a month after Adlai Stevenson cast America's lot with the African states over Portuguese Angola.

On Monday, 20,000 Portuguese stoned the American embassy in Lisbon and screamed hatred for U. S. Policy. This from a NATO ally, is strong evidence of change on our part.

But again, it is change in approach and not in basic policy which looks forward to the day when all Africa will be free and independent. Our new approach is to be seen in public with our African neighbors.

NEW ENVOY—James M. Gavin, 53, retired Army general, is the United States ambassador to France. He commanded the 82nd Airborne Division during World War II.

The Mature Parent

Parent Jealous of Child Poses Problem for Wife

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Since our daughter was born six months ago, our four-year-old boy has become a bed time problem. He calls me eight to ten times after he goes to bed. My husband gets mad when I go to him. He says that George is jealous of the baby and I am spoiling him. With the extra work for the baby, I get so tired of this fighting every night.

Answer: Could you stop swinging back and forth between your husband's wants and George's wants to try and figure out what it is that YOU want at the child's bedtime?

I would if I were you. I would decide I wanted rest. I would know I wanted my son's bedtime anxiety quieted. So I would tell George and his father I was taking the rest. Tonight I would pull up a comfortable chair beside George's crib and say to him, "You don't have to fuss any more. I'm going to sit right here beside you every night until you fall asleep."

I would do this happily, knowing that when George discovered he no longer had to fight for my attention, he would let me know it—and dismiss me himself. Accusations of "spoiling" him wouldn't bother me at all. I would know that I could no more spoil an anxious little child by giving him comfort than I could spoil a hungry one by giving him milk.

But then I am not married to your husband.

Even if I were, I fear I would have small patience with his jealousy of George. It would bore me as a grown-up jealousy of children always bores me because of its dishonesty. Unlike children who are honestly greedy for our attention, jealous grownups like to give moral beauty to their greediness for it. So they try to make us ashamed of the attention we are giving an envious child by accusing us of "spoiling" the child. It's an old trick I long ago ceased falling for.

So, as I see your husband's jealousy of his son as your real problem, I cannot advise you. In this column I present ideas on the treatment of children, not on the treatment of husbands who behave like children.

However, it might occur to you that it is difficult to be the mother of two screaming babies at bedtime. It might occur to you that you rate manly support instead of childish dependence from your husband at this time of family strain and readjustment. It might occur to you that the kind of attention we give a man's children is not the kind that the man should covet.

We, the Women

Pills by the Billions Take Over for Determination

By RUTH MILLETT

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

It was bound to happen, sooner or later. In case you missed the news item:

In England, a husband picked up two bottles of pills at his pharmacy. One was for him; a pill to build him up because he was underweight. The other pills were for his wife, who needed help in shedding some excess pounds.

On the way home, he got the bottles mixed. For three weeks, his wife ate more and more while he ate less and less. The error was finally discovered but only after he'd lost pounds and his too-plump wife had put on all or more than he took off.

Sad? Sure. But it really was inevitable, with all the pills we take today.

Some people take pills to go to sleep and some take pills to keep awake.

Some take pills to keep from being car, sea, or air sick. Some to keep from having hangovers. Some take pills to tranquilize themselves in order to face each day's demands without going into hysterics, others to pep them up enough to care how they meet each day.

It has gotten so that there seems to be a pill for everything. If you can't take it—take a pill. The pill is to modern life what grit and determination were to our ancestors.

It makes everything easy, perhaps too easy. Maybe it takes a mix-up like the one that happened to the English couple to make us realize just how dependent we have come to be on swallowing pills for whatever we think ails us.

for the hair spray, because she was going on a little trip and wanted to put it in her suitcase. She couldn't remember what she did with it, but she kept hunting and finally found it in the drawer, but when she took it out it wasn't hair spray. It was deodorizing spray. The two cans had been side by side in the bathroom.

Of course she couldn't smell so she didn't know she was using the deodorizing spray but she wondered what people at the church thought about her unusual fragrance. For it must have been strong from the amount she used. "I must have smelled the place up plenty," she said. —H. L.

Bad Cooking Is Blamed As Older Man Kills Wife

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—An elderly man walked into police headquarters Thursday, officers said, and told the sergeant on duty, "I just killed my wife."

"What did you do that for?" the sergeant asked.

"Everytime I ate her food, I got sick," the sergeant quoted Nish Torrence, 71, a retired freight handler as having said.

The police went to his home and found his wife, Mary, 67, shot to death.

Three doctors whom Torrence had consulted told the police there was nothing wrong with the man's stomach. Torrence was held on a homicide charge.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ten indictments ranging from mail fraud to income tax evasion were returned by the federal grand jury Tuesday.

Charged on 17 counts of using the mails and interstate wire communications to make fraudulent representations to prospective customers of the Better Business Association were Donald J. Chapell, Prairie Village, Kan.; Duane Long, Kansas City, Kan.; and E. L. Ruble, Kansas City.

The Better Business Association has been in a five-year court battle with the Better Business Bureau of Kansas City.

Weatherford Is Given Official Nod As Manager

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Robert P. Weatherford Jr., former mayor of Independence, Mo., was officially elected city manager by the City Council Thursday night after his earlier appointment was thrown out because of faulty parliamentary procedure.

The council vote was 5-4, the same as the defaulted Wednesday night election.

Councilman Charles C. Shafer, who led the parliamentary battle against Weatherford, attempted to block the appointment with a filibuster but was ruled out of order by John Cosgrove, acting city counselor.

Meet in Chilly Weather

Local Thinclads Close; But Lose To Cardinals

The Smith-Cotton Tigers literally came within a fraction of winning a track meet Thursday. The Sedalia thinclads lost to Clinton's Cardinals, by two thirds of a point, 59 and one third to 58 and two-thirds, at Clinton.

In spite of chilly weather, several fine performances were turned in. Smith-Cotton's Larus Durnell, a sophomore, won the 100-yard dash in 10.5 seconds; Russell of Clinton won the 440-yard dash in 54.8 seconds, and Art Wiggins soared 5 feet 8 1/2 inches in the high jump.

High point honors went to Brame of Clinton who won the broad jump, the 880-yard run, finished second in the 100-yard dash, and ran a leg on Clinton's winning mile relay team for a total of 14 1/4 points.

Durnell was next in point production with 13. Besides the 100-yard dash, he won the 220-yard dash in 24.3 seconds, and placed second in the 440-yard dash. Charlie Case had ten points, winning the 180-yard low hurdles in 23 seconds, taking second in the broad jump and third in the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes.

Wiggins, besides turning in his finest performance in the high jump this season, ran a leg on Smith-Cotton's winning 880-yard relay team and took third in the broad jump with a leap of 18 feet 5 1/2 inches.

Dennis Lively of Smith-Cotton turned in his season's best high hurdle time with a trip of 17.4 seconds, finishing close on the heels of Witherspoon of Clinton. Lively also finished second in the 880-yard run with a time of 2:15.9 for a total of six points.

Bill Sprinkle of Smith-Cotton finished in a tie for first in the shot put with a heave of 44 feet 2 1/2 inches.

Larry Holden of Smith-Cotton threw the discus 120 feet 2 inches to place second in that event as well as placing third in the shot put.

Other Smith-Cotton boys who placed were Ronnie Miller, 10 feet 3 1/2 inches in the pole vault for second; Larry Beard, second in the mile run in 5:16; Claiborn Campbell, who ran a leg on Smith-Cotton's 880 relay and placed third in the 180 yard low hurdles; Larry Schneider, in the 880 relay and third in the half mile run; Don Swearingin, third in the 440 dash and third place tie in the pole vault; Roy Peakes, who ran on the 880 relay team; Mike McLeod, third in the mile run; and Jack Kenny, third place tie in the pole vault.

The Smith-Cotton Tigers will host the Marshall Owls next Tuesday at the Jenny Jaynes Stadium for their next meet.

Cal Griffith, Twins Head For Success

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — After years of austerity, Calvin Griffith, owner of the Minnesota Twins, formerly the Washington Senators, is striking it rich. Unless all signs fail, Griffith and his transplanted Twins are headed for a success story that may approach or equal that of Lou Pomeroy and his Braves when the Boston franchise was moved to Milwaukee eight years ago.

Last year in Washington, the club's advance season ticket sale totaled only $127,000. So far in Minneapolis-St. Paul, more than $750,000 has been banked from season tickets. Club officials are confident the amount will exceed $1,200,000 before opening day.

"We drew 743,000 in Washington last year," said Herb Heft, the club's publicity man. "We'll be disappointed if we don't come close to doubling that figure. We know we're going to sell out opening day and we're already assured of at least 12,000 fans at every one of our games. We're going to start out with more money in the bank than Washington grossed all last year."

The seating capacity at the Bloomington Park has been increased from 22,000 to 30,463. By September, the stadium will be able to seat 40,000.

"We've already tripled the number of tickets we sold in Washington last year at this time," said Heft. "The way the fans have been clamoring for tickets, a million attendance our first year in Minnesota should be a snap. Some of our people are envisioning a million and a half."

Even more pleasing to Griffith than the fans' response has been their treatment of him. The head of the Twins is a changed man. It's as if he's starting a new life.

"Calvin was constant target of abuse in Washington," said a Minnesota club official. "He was blamed for all the team's misfortunes. They accused him of running the club down. They called him lucky and stupid. Lucky because he inherited the club from his father and stupid because he could do nothing to lift the team out of the second division."

"He couldn't go out in a public place without having someone ask him why he didn't do anything about the Senators. It got so he became almost a hermit, avoiding people and public places."

"It's so different in Minnesota. The people there look up to him. They stop him on the street and shake his hand. They wish him luck and they thank him for bringing a major league club to their city. Whenever he attended a hockey or a basketball game in Minneapolis, he would be introduced and the fans would cheer him."

"He's got a different attitude on life. He's happy for the first time in years."

Stewart Named Iowa State Teacher Coach
CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (AP) — Norman Stewart, an assistant coach at the University of Missouri, today was named head basketball coach at Iowa State Teachers College.

Stewart also will serve as assistant baseball coach. The appointment is effective June 19, opening date of the summer term.

As a player, Stewart set most of the Missouri basketball scoring records erased this year by Charles Henke, the Big Eight's leading point maker.

Stewart graduated from Missouri in 1956 and has been assistant coach since then.

Pay Tribute To a Great Grid Coach

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Thirty years ago today a west-bound airlines plane, shortly after leaving Kansas City, crashed in a wheat field near the Kansas hill town of Bazaar. Knute Rockne was among the eight persons aboard who perished.

Every year since then, his friends, associates and former players under his tutelage have gathered to pay tribute to Notre Dame's football strategist who made the Fighting Irish as well as his own name a household word.

A group of 250 attended memorial mass in the Alumni Hall Chapel last Sunday. Jack Cannon of Columbus, Ohio, who was one of Rockne's greatest linemen in 1927-29, later addressed the group. Cannon and the present football coach, Joe Kuharich, then placed a wreath on Rock's grave in Highland Cemetery.

There are no special services today. The campus is quiet because of Easter vacation.

Rockne, who had just turned 43, was en route to Los Angeles for a business meeting when he was killed. The previous fall his Fighting Irish were national champions, capping Rockne's 13-year coaching tenure at Notre Dame in which his teams compiled a 105-12-5 record.

His most famous team was made up of the Four Horsemen—Elmer Layden, Harry Stuhldreher, Don Miller and Jim Crowley—and seven mules in the middle 1920's. But, perhaps, his most brilliant was his last 1930 outfit which rolled over Southern Methodist, Navy, Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Drake, Northwestern, Army and Southern California.

Rockne, a star pass-snagging end at Notre Dame in his playing days and voted the all-time All America coach in a 1951 nationwide Associated Press poll, was credited with creating the backfield shift. He, personally, always gave the credit to Amos Alonzo Stagg at Chicago.

The story goes that Rockne attended a musical in Chicago and was impressed by the precision of the dancing girls. The next day he instituted the backfield shift.

Home Organ Picks Up Ham Operators
IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — There's as much ham as hum in Ray Bahe's electric home organ.

Mrs. Bahe recently switched on the organ and listened to ham radio station K7NUP attempting to reach another amateur operator in Las Vegas, Nev.

Bahe said the organ has been picking up radio messages for two weeks and "reception is excellent."

He said he doesn't know where K7NUP is located. He once heard a conversation involving an operator on Southern California's Mojave Desert.

Peacocks Almost Shot As Wildcats
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Six peacocks showed their true colors and proved they weren't wildcats.

Residents of the Mandarin area south of Jacksonville had reported hearing sounds like wildcats would make and there was a general search for wildcats.

Thursday Vance Goode heard the sounds from a tree and was just about to fire a shotgun when a male peacock unruffled his beautiful feathers.

The six birds had flown away from a peacock farm about a mile away.

Trio Is Starring

Three Trades Beneficial To Cards' Pennant Plans

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

Three trades the St. Louis Cardinals made with the San Francisco Giants are starting to prove beneficial for the Red Birds with pitcher Ernie Broglio, first baseman Bill White and shortstop Daryl Spencer all figuring prominently in their 1961 National League pennant plans.

The trio starred in the Cards' 2-1 exhibition baseball victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers at St. Petersburg Thursday. Broglio, a 21-game winner last season, just about clinched the opening day assignment by becoming the first St. Louis pitcher to go nine innings this spring.

The big right-hander allowed four hits, struck out four and walked four. The lone run off him came on Duke Snider's fourth-inning homer.

White, who batted .283 and slammed 16 home runs in 1960, collected two of the Red Birds' six hits. Spencer broke up the game with a ninth inning home run off veteran Don Newcombe, who is attempting a comeback with his old team. The lanky infielder was the first batter to face Newcombe in the ninth. Nevcombe, who relieved starter Larry Sherry, gave up three hits in his three-inning stint.

Elsewhere along the exhibition trail Thursday: Minnesota edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3. New York nipped Detroit 5-4. Milwaukee trimmed Kansas City 8-2. Pittsburgh posted a 6-4 victory over Philadelphia. San Francisco turned back Boston 7-5, the Los Angeles Angels shaded Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League 3-2 and the Baltimore "B" squad edged Richmond of the International League 6-5. The game between the Chicago Cubs and Cleveland was canceled by wet grounds at Tucson.

Hal Naragon's three-run homer and Bob Allison's solo four-bagger triggered the Twins' conquest over the White Sox. Home runs by Deron Johnson and Jesse Gonder were the key blasts in the Yanks' win at the expense of the Tigers.

Billy Martin batted in five runs with a homer and two singles in the Braves' success over the A's. Joe Adcock also homered for Milwaukee. Dick Schofield's two-run homer in the eighth provided the winning margin for the Pirates against the Phils.

Willie Mays and rookie Tom Haller produced homers in the Giants' win over the Red Sox. Jackie Jensen of Boston was forced to retire with a pulled muscle in his right leg. The injury was believed not serious.

How much to run this Volkswagen Truck?
(2¢ per mile? 2.5¢ per mile? 6¢ per mile?)

We know one VW Truck owner who figures his operating costs at 1.8¢ a mile. Another figures 6.6¢ a mile. Both are right. Costs vary with use, driving habits and accounting methods.

That's why we make no claims of "up to" a certain number of miles per gallon, or "as low as" a certain cost per mile. We prefer merely to cite experiences of VW Truck owners. One figure we think is fair is the 4.5¢ per mile, including gas, oil, repairs, tires, and tubes, for 17 VW Trucks doing door-to-door delivery in the hilly Seattle area.

Cost figures supplied by several owners are available in our 60-page booklet, "The Owner's Viewpoint." Come in and pick up a free copy. Or ask us to mail it to you.

Peacocks Almost Shot As Wildcats
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Six peacocks showed their true colors and proved they weren't wildcats.

Residents of the Mandarin area south of Jacksonville had reported hearing sounds like wildcats would make and there was a general search for wildcats.

Thursday Vance Goode heard the sounds from a tree and was just about to fire a shotgun when a male peacock unruffled his beautiful feathers.

The six birds had flown away from a peacock farm about a mile away.

No. 6 — The Backswing Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The basic idea in most shots, especially the drive, is to get the clubhead in a controlled arc so it will strike the ball as it reaches maximum speed.

For the purpose of instruction, the swing can be broken down into three phases—the backswing, downswing and follow through. In use all three phases should be coordinated into one flowing motion.

Grip the club properly and

stand with the clubhead just behind the ball, with its face square to the line of flight. Start the backswing smooth and low, the hips pivoting to the right, the weight shifting automatically to the right foot. Make it a sweeping movement with the left arm straight, but not rigid.

Keep both elbows close to the body. Don't bend the wrists until they have reached the waist line. Bending them too soon interrupts the flowing continuity of the swing, disrupts the unbroken rhythm you must have for good driving.

Don't let the club dip much below the horizontal at the top of the swing.

Don't loosen the grip, but let the hands and fingers maintain control without tightness or tenseness throughout, particularly at the top of the swing.

NEXT: The downswing.

Washington Pretty As Ever As Spring Guests Pour In WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington today was as pretty as she's ever been for her annual springtime guests — and they are arriving by the thousands.

About a million visitors are expected within a month, more than seven million during the year.

The cherry blossoms made a pink fairyland down by the Jefferson Memorial. The magnolia trees burst almost overnight into pale pink and lavender blooms all over town. The newly scrubbed government buildings gleamed white behind the yellow forsythia.

Across the avenue from the green expanse of the White House grounds, hundreds of pantries splashed Lafayette Square with color.

Blossoming trees and shrubs gave a festive air to the stretch of Massachusetts Avenue where magnificent embassies rub shoulders.

And the tourists arrived. Nobody could prove it, but some oldtimers around town said they believed the combination of cherry blossoms, Easter and spring all at the same time brought a record number of visitors to the capital.

But then they always come about this time, said a policeman. That was a policeman out by the Capitol steps.

The most oft asked question, he said, was about what went on in the Capitol and did the President live there.

The question asked the second most often, the policeman figured, is what is the statue on top of the Capitol. (It's a draped woman, not an Indian, representing freedom).

The third question involves directions — how do you get there? "And they all ask how to get to the White House," the policeman said. (It's 16 blocks down Pennsylvania Ave.).

While the policeman talked, high school youngsters kept rolling by like tumbleweeds on the prairie.

Just one 20-minute check of grabbing poplin car coat sleeves and asking "where you from?" turned up in the Capitol.

The high school senior class from Graham, N. C., 80 strong, who sold candy and put on a senior play to pay for their trip.

The senior class from Union Grove, Wis., with 29 students and three chaperones who came by train. They held a donkey basketball game and a fish fry to help make money for their trip.

Some 30 youths from all over the country sightseeing here before going to Europe for the International Farm Youth Exchange. The senior class from Deer Park, Ohio, 83 of them with four counselors.

A senior class from Lancaster, Pa., 102 of them, who came down in three chartered buses just for the day.

The senior class, 110 strong, from Landisville, Pa., who also came in chartered buses just for the day.

There was a bus driver waiting for the high school group from Griffin, Ind., who had chartered his Washington bus while they were sightseeing.

What impresses the youngsters most? "Arlington Cemetery," said the bus driver. "The Capitol and the White House impress them, but they can go in and out of other buildings not impressed at all. But just let me say we're coming to Arlington Cemetery, and they settle down, stop their kidding and playing around and settle down."

Police Dispatchers Choosey With Words

BATAVIA, N.Y. (AP) — Police radio dispatchers here are extra careful in their choice of words. The First Methodist church says its public address amplifier picks up police calls when squad cars are nearby.

Socialite Plunges To Death in Street

NEW YORK (AP) — Cragie McKay Schwartz, 31, socialite daughter of former polo star A. Charles Schwartz, fell or jumped to her death Thursday from the family's 14th floor Park Avenue apartment.

Police said she had been ill for some time.

Her father, an attorney, was one of the country's top polo players and turfmen in the 1920s. He was summoned home from California, where he was on a business trip.

Supreme Court Throws Out An Alabama Divorce

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The State Supreme Court has thrown out the divorce of a couple who admittedly never lived in Alabama, and thus may have shaken the foundations of the state's quickie divorce business.

The court Thursday said the divorce obtained by Mrs. John Hartigan of Yonkers, N.Y., in 1954, was invalid because she and Hartigan "were guilty of fraud" by claiming Alabama residence.

State law calls for one year's residence but waives that requirement "when the court has jurisdiction of both parties."

'43 Promise Comes True At Annapolis

By STU GROSS
Staff Writer, Saginaw News
Written Especially for The Associated Press

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — The story starts with the sadness of war, but it has star dust sprinkled on it and the ending has the happiness and gaiety of youth.

On April 18, 1942, in New London, Conn., there was a pretty wedding in which Dorothy Nuechterlein of Frankenmuth, Mich., became the bride of Ensign William Cuthbertson Jr.

The best man and matron of honor were Lt. and Mrs. J. M. McMahon, parents of two boys, Mike, 3, and James, then a baby. Their lives were to be intertwined in death and in events that make this story possible.

Shortly after the wedding, the young ensign and lieutenant were

Absentees Clinch Alton School Bonds

ALTON, Mo. (AP) — Absentee ballots clinched the passage of a $330,000 bond issue for a new high school for Alton.

The issue was ahead by a margin of only three votes in the special election Saturday, but the 230 absentee votes, counted Thursday, went 220 for the issue, 9 against and 1 rejected. That gave the issue 205 votes over the required two-thirds majority.

The issue was defeated in six previous elections.

assigned duty on the submarine Grunion. It sailed from New London, through the Panama Canal and into the waters of the Aleutians. There on Aug. 2, 1942, the sub was lost with all hands on board.

Mrs. Cuthbertson came back to Frankenmuth to live with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nuechterlein. Mrs. McMahon and her two sons also left New London. They never saw each other again, but kept in contact by letters.

Mrs. Cuthbertson gave birth to a baby girl, Nancy Lee, Jan. 27, 1943, and on Feb. 1 a telegram was delivered to Nancy at Saginaw's St. Mary's Hospital.

It said: "Don't forget our date for Annapolis hop in 1961. If you like rugged men count on Jim or curly-headed Mike." It was signed "Jim and Mike."

Both boys tried for Annapolis. Jim's eyesight kept him out. Now he's studying in a university in Germany. Mike made it, and is a senior at Annapolis.

And the promise made in infancy is being kept in maturity, and today Nancy and her mother fly from Willow Run Airport to Washington, D.C., to meet Mrs. McMahon, and Nancy will dance

Saturday night at the annual midshipmen's Easter ball with Mike as her partner.

Wages, Pensions, Gifts, Winnings; Which Is Taxed And Which Is Not?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Just what does the government consider income for tax purposes? Its definition is quite a bit different from the general usage of the word. This, the last of five articles, explains the income you must remember and the income you can forget when tax time rolls around.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Here's an income tax tip that might prove more worthwhile than any other: if you've got a refund coming, don't vanish.

Sounds foolish? Maybe so, but that's exactly what happens in thousands of cases each year. The Treasury currently is trying to locate 58,340 taxpayers who are due refunds totaling $2.7 million.

Many of these people didn't write legibly on their returns. Others moved without giving the post office a forwarding address.

Another mistake some people make is to report income that is exempt from tax. Types of exempt income include:

Social Security benefits, unemployment compensation and payments under the Railroad Retirement law.

Inheritance and death benefits from life insurance policies.

All government payments to veterans and their families, except retirement pay not connected with a disability and interest on terminal leave bonds.

Gifts of cash or things of value for which you perform no service whatever. However, contest or quiz show winnings are taxed.

Interest on state and municipal bonds, subsistence and rental allowances for members of the armed forces and dividends on GI life insurance policies.

Pay received from your employer while you were sick, within strict limits spelled out in the instruction booklets distributed with tax forms.

Some income from pensions and annuities, also explained in the instructions.

Prizes and awards recognizing past accomplishments in civic, literary, artistic, educational, scientific, charitable or religious fields.

Scholarships if the recipient is a candidate for a degree; if not, the maximum amount exempted is $300 a month for 36 months provided certain other requirements are met.

The first $50 of dividends on most stock ($100 if you file a joint return and own the shares jointly with your wife). You may also be eligible for a special tax credit if you had more than $50 of dividend income. Rules are given in the official instructions.

Taxable income includes wages, salary, bonuses, commissions, fees, tips, interest, dividends, profits from the sale or exchange of property, rents and royalties, income from estates and trusts and profits from farm, business or profession.

Alimony and separate maintenance payments are taxed if received from someone entitled to deduct them on his or her tax return.

You also must pay taxes on any expense money provided by your employer if you collected more than you actually spent on the job. You pay tax on the excess.

If you spent more than you collected from your boss, you may be able to deduct the excess. Deductible on page 1 of tax forms 1040 and 1040W are:

1. Expenses of overnight business trips, but not including entertainment and personal outlays.
2. Transportation expenses, but not including the cost of getting to and from work.
3. All necessary and ordinary expenses of outside salesmen.

Other job-connected expenses are deducted among "miscellaneous" items on page 2 of the tax forms.

You may also deduct in some cases, the cost of education connected with your job. The rules and procedures are given in the IRS instructions.

If you have any questions about any tax matter, IRS is the place to go. You may reach the agency by phone or in person and there is no charge for its help. If you take up a problem with IRS now, you may save yourself trouble in the future.

Mennonite Man Changes Mind, Returns Money

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—A Mennonite farmer has changed his mind again and returned $1,100 he found in a box of trinkets he bought for 10 cents at a public sale.

Ben Zimmerman made the purchase last Saturday. He at first said he was going to return the money to the executors of the estate of Ira Stover, who conducted the public sale.

Then Wednesday he said he had changed his mind and was going to keep the money because he had learned Stover had no close heirs.

Thursday he changed his mind again and returned the money because, he said, he didn't feel right about keeping it.

Zimmerman received $55 from the estate's administrators. This amount was their normal five per cent commission.

Air Force Reservist Is Dreading April 1

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Joseph C. Schardt Jr., of suburban Berkeley, an Air Force reservist, is looking with some apprehension to April Fool's Day in 1971.

Here's why: On April 1, 1941, Schardt was drafted.

On April 1, 1951, he was recalled for duty in the Korean War.

Saturday he starts a special month-long assignment at Scott Air Force Base, Ill.

Divorce Is Costly To Wealthy Oilman

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Last December oilman John L. Reen Jr. told his wife, Elizabeth, he wanted a divorce. She said he told her: "Get yourself a smart lawyer."

Mrs. Green, a former New York model, told superior court Thursday: "That's just what I did."

She won a divorce, custody of their son, John III, 4, $250 a month support for the boy, and a property settlement which paid her $187,000 in assets.

Both Green and his wife are 33. They were married in New York in 1952 and separated last December.

Thief Returns Stolen Car In Good Condition

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A telephone rang in the used car lot's office and Larry Yates, an employee, answered.

"You see that white car parked out in front?" the caller asked Thursday.

Yates replied that he did. "Well, it's yours," the caller said and hung up.

Yates called police and an investigation revealed that the auto had been stolen from the company 11 months earlier. Officers said it had been returned by the thief in excellent condition.

"He even brought it back with good tires and the tank filled with gasoline," detective J. W. Smith said.

Memphis Braces For Invasion Of Mosquitoes

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Memphis is braced for a mosquito invasion, the likes of which, the Health Department says, it hasn't seen in many a year.

The massive offensive, expected to begin shortly, will come from nearby lowlands, now covered by the flood - swollen Mississippi River.

The pests lay their eggs in these areas in the fall. The eggs remain dormant all winter long. To hatch in the spring, all they need is water and warm weather.

"There are more mosquito breeding grounds under water than we've had in a long time," a department spokesman said. It looks like we're in for a rough time.

The grounds cover too large an area to be treated with insecticides.

Plan Marker At Quantrill Attack Site

By JOHN K. HAY
The Pittsburg Headlight
Written for The Associated Press

BAXTER SPRINGS, Kan. (AP)—Sudden death was not uncommon in the early days of this thriving community in the extreme southeast corner of Kansas.

From 1868 to 1873, it was a booming cattle town. Tough characters of all types were drawn to the boisterous community and the vigilante hangman's noose did a bustling business as the town fought to harden its spirit against the raucous element.

Even before the cattle trails from the south pointed in this direction, Baxter Springs had its baptism of violence and death.

A school teacher, William C. Quantrill, who deserted his profession for a career of pillaging and terrorism, gave Baxter Springs its first blood bath in his raid 98 years ago, when he wiped out nearly 100 federal troops.

The early history of the town is recalled by announcement that a marker commemorating the massacre is to be renovated and relocated. It will be removed from its location in the city to the site of the massacre north of town on a new section of U.S. 66, now under construction.

Quantrill made his raid Oct. 6, 1863. He suddenly swooped upon the unsuspecting detachment of federal troops commanded by Maj. Gen. J. G. Blunt. The detachment was traveling from Fort Scott to Fort Gibson by way of Baxter Springs. A fort had been established at Baxter Springs earlier that fall.

Quantrill's 250 men attacked the fort and were repulsed. Quantrill was burning from the sting of that defeat when his raiders, dressed in Union uniforms, spotted Blunt's force later the same day.

The raiders attacked without warning. Most of the Union force was killed, but Gen. Blunt escaped through an unguarded opening in the woods.

A man of vanity, Blunt had in his detachment a snappy brass band. The band had been moved to the front of the detachment for a smart appearance as the unit approached Baxter Springs. There was no advance guard.

Blunt and the remnants of his forces returned to Fort Scott.

A national cemetery was established near Baxter Springs in 1877 in honor of those killed by Quantrill's raiders. Bodies of soldiers slaughtered in the raid were reburied in the plot.

Two Officials Fail To Show for Meeting

ACCRA, Ghana (AP)—President Sekou Toure of Guinea and President Modibo Keita of Mali failed to show up Thursday and the first meeting of the Ghana-Guinea-Mali Union was postponed.

Government officials had assembled at the airport for a big reception.

President Kwame Nkrumah's office said later Toure was indisposed. A source close to the Mali government said that since Toure was unable to attend Keita also decided to stay home.

The union, formed last December, is the brainchild of Nkrumah and has been heralded as the nucleus of a United States of Africa.

Drama Series Makes Debut Friday Night

NEW YORK (AP) — Except for an outpouring of special programs tied to the Easter weekend, things will be fairly quiet in televisionland the next seven days.

Tonight however, there is a debut of a new dramatic series, "Way Out," which takes over on CBS (9:30-10 EST) and promises to concentrate on the strange and mysterious.

There is another American Heritage program, "Not In Vain," concerned with events leading to the Gettysburg Address, on NBC Saturday night (9:30-10). Raymond Massey again will play Lincoln.

On Sunday morning there will be both Protestant and Catholic church services televised between 11 a.m. and noon. NBC will have its cameras in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in Boston where Richard Cardinal Cushing will celebrate a Solemn High Mass. CBS' services will be broadcast from New York's Riverside church, with Dr. Robert J. McCracken officiating.

A new opera, "Break of Day," will have its premiere on ABC (1-2 p.m.) Sunday, a musical treatment of the Resurrection.

The first of a number of briefing sessions on the forthcoming trial of Adolf Eichmann will be shown on ABC at 3:30 Easter Day. For evening entertainment there is, on NBC, a special called "Marineland Circus" (8-9) with Rosemary Clooney and Lloyd Bridges, followed by another Roy Rogers country-style special on the same network. ABC has a police-action series, "Asphalt Jungle" making its bow at 9:30.

On Wednesday (8:30-9 p.m.) CBS has an action series, "Danger Man" bowing in, and ABC's Thursday night "Silents Please" (10:30-11) is a condensation of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" with Lon Chaney.

Networks Against Pay-TV Without Being for Anything

"THE CONSUL" offered nothing but the best on pay-TV.

By DICK KLEINER

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — This year may be the turning point for pay-TV, which Variety calls feevee and which the networks call all sorts of things.

The FCC has authorized a test for one system in Hartford, Conn. Another system, Telemeter, is stepping up its operations which already include a successful franchise in Etobicoke, a suburb of Toronto. Telemeter expects, before 1961 has run off the calendar, to have a U.S. franchise in operation, perhaps in Little Rock, Ark.

Telemeter officials always have maintained that pay-TV will never replace free TV; it will merely be an additional service. Nevertheless, the networks staunchly oppose it, reasoning correctly that if it is allowed in, it will at least cut down network viewing.

Their opposition takes the form of speeches, arguments before Congress, pamphlets of statistics.

It apparently hasn't occurred to the networks that if they improved their programs, pay-TV wouldn't have a chance.

And so the plans for next fall are being announced now by ABC, CBS and NBC. There is a situation comedy, with Peggy Cass and a family of monkeys. There is a series called Cain's Hundred about a federal agent "battling the rulers of the nations invisible crime operations." Somebody is listed as the "creator" of the show. (Creating a show like that is something like applying for a patent on a wheel.)

On and on come the new shows, which are all simply variations on the same old themes.

Meanwhile, Telemeter's operation is trying something new—Broadway productions in full.

This writer saw their first effort, Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Consul." It was, without doubt, the finest production of any sort I have ever seen on a TV screen.

It ran two hours and 13 minutes—not 2 hours, or 2¼ hours—with two intermissions. The TV set politely buzzed when it was time to return to the seat after the intermission.

Actually, "The Consul" isn't new. As a matter of fact, there was a TV version in the good old days when TV was trying to find its way. (It subsequently got lost.) And so it can be argued that what Telemeter is doing in presenting it again is not original thinking at all. Some of their other productions, too, have been done before on one medium or another.

But that's not the point. The point is that this outfit is offering top-notch entertainment to its handful of customers. "The Consul" is the kind of production which will long be remembered by every one of the Telemeter clients who purchased it; can you remember anything about any on program you saw last week?

Now there would have been nothing to prevent one of the networks from doing "The Consul." The property was available. The cast was available, and cheaply, too, since there are no "big names" in the fan magazine sense of the words. The producer, director and technical crews were available.

The only thing that was unavailable was initiative. The networks are sitting, fat and sleek, behind highly-polished desks that apparently block their view of reality. The reality is that the public is ripe for pay-TV because they aren't getting much decent programming from the old sources.

The networks say the public gets what it wants—"the ratings prove it." All the ratings prove is that there are millions of TV set owners who don't watch much of anything.

And they will continue to watch less and less until, suddenly, the networks wake up and realize they have lost the old ball game. Pay-TV will have moved in. It already has its foot in the door.

Eichmann Is TV Epidemic

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A two-week epidemic of special television programs about Hitler's chief executioner, Adolf Eichmann, and the incredible suffering and death he brought about is soon to start.

All three major networks are planning to give the impending trial of Eichmann in Israel—to start April 11—intensive coverage on their news programs and in special news programs as courtroom proceedings develop. But they are also going to prepare the viewing audiences for it with the background of the case against the man charged with responsibility for exterminating millions of Jews in Hitler's Germany.

The briefing sessions start this Sunday with an ABC show, "The Other Adolf."

NBC will kick off its coverage with a debate on Saturday, April 8, on the legal aspects of the trial. Dr. Herbert Wechsler of Columbia University and Dr. Milton Kat of Harvard, both law experts, will take sides on the question whether the trial will serve the cause of international justice.

On April 9 both NBC and ABC have special shows. ABC's is called "Israel and Eichmann" while NBC's is "The Trial of Adolf Eichmann."

CBS on April 12 has a Circle Theatre dramatization of Eichmann's career. And there's an ABC "Close Up" on April 14 based on the recollections of a Jew who survived eight concentration camps, as well as a background program on CBS' "Eye-witness to History."

Meanwhile, producers and editors are studying and editing hundreds of feet of old films, some captured from the Germans by the Allied armies. They have been hunting for and interviewing—here and abroad—English-speaking survivors of the Nazi horror camps. And they have been worrying about how much they can show about conditions without repelling the viewing audience.

"That's the big problem," admitted Chet Hagen, producer of NBC's briefing show. "A lot of those films are too strong even for me. I think we can only use a little from them—and we'll have to treat the extermination thing symbolically."

"I've found some films where they were pouring gold teeth out of a box and pictures of piles of eyeglasses. That may be enough to tell what happened. And I also found some film taken by a Pole that showed the Nazis dragging Jews out of their homes and beating them into the streets and into railroad cars."

Interviews with survivors will play important parts in the TV shows.

"We got one interview with a man who, at 14, was an inmate of Auschwitz," Hagen recalled. "He remembers that two days after he was freed in May, 1945, he saw a funeral procession. 'I couldn't understand why they were making such a fuss over one man,' he said. 'I laughed. Over a million people were exterminated in Auschwitz.'"

Jury Convicts Peel Of Plotting Murder

It Refuses To Give Him The Chair

Judge Has Mandate To Sentence Him To Life In Prison

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP)—Joseph A. Peel, Jr., was convicted Thursday on a charge that he plotted the murder of Circuit Court Judge C. E. Chillingworth, but the jury refused to put him in the electric chair.

"The majority of us recommend him to the mercy of the court," said the verdict. That meant that Circuit Court Judge D. C. Smith has a mandate to sentence Peel to life imprisonment.

Peel, 37, a former City Court Judge of West Palm Beach, was accused of hiring two killers to throw Chillingworth in the Atlantic Ocean in 1955 to save himself from exposure as a behind-the-scenes racketeer.

Chillingworth's wife died with him in the sea, but only the judge's death was at issue in this trial.

Peel pleaded innocent on the witness stand and stood up strongly under cross-examination, but obviously failed to overturn a mass of state witness testimony against him.

He took the verdict calmly. Out in the courtroom, his sober, black-haired wife, Imogene, also showed no emotion. But seconds later she got up, ran out into a witness room and pulled the shade over the door.

The indictment on which Peel was tried charged him with being an accessory before the fact to the murder of Chillingworth. He could be tried again in the death of the judge's wife, Marjorie.

State Atty. Phil O'Connell, who had pursued the investigation of the Chillingworths' disappearance more than five years, declined to say whether there would be another trial.

"I wasn't a bit satisfied," said Peel, his prison-pale face flushed. "I can't comment on this."

Judge Smith set the April 26 as the tentative date for the formal sentencing and to hear defense motions for a new trial.

The trial of Florida's most sensational murder mystery started March 6. The jury was given a choice of sending Peel to the chair, giving him life imprisonment.

Faber to Resign Chamber Post Friday Evening

John L. "Jack" Faber will resign his post Friday as executive manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce. By action of the executive committee and board of directors of the Chamber March 31 was set as the completion of his duties following his resignation Tuesday to accept the position as executive manager of the Chamber at Albuquerque, N.M., effective April 15.

Faber stated he had not asked the executive committee and board for this consideration given him but he was very grateful to them for giving him the extra time in which to take care of the necessary things that must be done when moving to another city.

He plans to leave Sedalia for Albuquerque about April 11. No one is being considered for the position of secretary-manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce at the present time.

Crest Due To Fall

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, May Escape Flood

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP)—Downward revision of a Cedar River flood crest due here Friday brightened hopes somewhat Thursday night of escaping the multi-million-dollar damage inflicted at Waterloo.

The U. S. Geological Survey forecast a crest of 20 feet or less—a foot under its previous estimate. The swollen river's rate of rise had diminished to two-tenths of a foot an hour Thursday afternoon after climbing six inches an hour earlier in the day. The river was past the 15-foot mark, two feet over flood stage.

Veteran observers noted that the city's levee system, constructed since the record flood of 20.1 feet in 1929, had withstood 19-foot crests in past years.

However, the City Council declared a state of emergency. It closed the six bridges which link the east and west sides of this industrial city divided by the Cedar, and ordered all off-duty policemen and firemen back to work.

W. W. Stolba, streets commissioner, said weak spots have developed in the dikes which never showed up before. Flood water was seeping into low areas.

He said 1,300 houses in low-lying areas were in danger of being flooded. All residents of these areas, estimated at 4,000, were urged to move out.

Mayor Ed Jochumsen estimated the record Cedar River flood at Waterloo caused $60 million in property damage. The suburban towns of Evansdale and Cedar Falls also were hard hit.

As the Cedar River swept downstream Thursday it reached a peak of 18.3 feet at Vinton, 42 miles northwest of here. This crest was three feet under that forecast and it arrived earlier than expected.

Floodwaters stood halfway up on some houses near Vinton. Farm families near Palo, west of here, also moved out as lowland areas were inundated.

In this city of 92,035—second largest in Iowa—the number of juveniles outnumbered the adults working to strengthen the old levees and build new ones.

In the stricken Waterloo area, the giant clean-up task was in progress, although the Cedar still was four feet above flood stage.

Evansdale Mayor Alfred Gardner, whose town was covered by six feet of muddy water, said he feared a possible outbreak of typhoid fever and urged residents to be vaccinated.

Elsewhere, a storm which dropped heavy snows in mountainous northern Arizona and spread rain over most of the rest of the state, moved eastward and built up thunderheads over Texas and Louisiana.

Jacob Lake, Ariz., north of Grand Canyon, reported 21 inches of snow. A foot of snow fell on Flagstaff, Ariz.

Rain and occasional showers extended as far east as Georgia. Some rain occurred from southern Virginia to North Carolina.

Intermittent snow flurries moved on from the southern Rockies area to western Kansas and the Texas Panhandle. There were flurries in Montana and from Pennsylvania into western New York.

BULLETIN

PARIS (AP)—Mayor Camille Blanc of Evian-les-Bains, where the French-Algerian peace talks will be held in April, was killed by bomb explosions in front of his home early Friday.

Evian is in eastern France on Lake Geneva near Lausanne.

Two bombs went off at 2:30 a.m. outside the Hotel Beau Rivage in Evian.

Both the mayor and his wife were injured by the blasts and were rushed to a hospital. The mayor died soon after admission.

The mayor was hit in the face and shoulder by bomb fragments which were believed to have been of the plastic type.

Top of $32.50 Paid For Angus At KC Sale

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A top of $32.50 was paid Thursday for 16 head of Angus steers averaging 429 pounds at the weekly sale of replacement cattle.

That sale topped the day's previous high of $32.10 for 55 head of Hereford steers averaging 448 pounds.

The 3,544 animals sold averaged $25.82, 68 cents higher than last week.

Renewed Fighting In Laos

But Situation Isn't Bad Enough To Call In SEATO

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The Laotian Government Thursday reported renewed fighting but said the civil war is not serious enough at this time to warrant requesting SEATO intervention.

Information Minister Bouavann Norasing reported Communist-supplied rebels and royal troops clashed near Kam Keut, about 130 miles east of Vientiane, Tuesday while Southeast Asia Treaty Organization foreign ministers were meeting in Bangkok, Thailand.

But, he added, the situation is not so grave at present as to warrant asking SEATO for military intervention. Laos is not a member of the eight-nation anti-Communist bloc and must formally request aid.

Bouavann said 80 rebels were killed in Tuesday's Kam Keut battle, heaviest in a week. This contradicted reports that a virtual cease-fire seemed in effect.

A high-ranking army officer, claiming government soldiers suffered just two wounded, told newsmen royal troops encountered three Pathet Lao rebel battalions and three battalions of Communist invaders from North Viet Nam equipped with 60 Soviet-built trucks.

Reliable sources said government reports of the fighting were exaggerated and that there was no evidence North Vietnamese battalions were in the area.

Bouavann said six Soviet-built transport planes were sighted near Tha Thom, 115 miles east of Vientiane, possibly indicating rebel paratroop activity.

Military sources reported only moderate fighting Thursday along three "fronts"—the Vientiane-Luang Prabang road to the north; the Tha Thom area south of the Plaine des Jarre in the northeast; and the Kam Keut area.

Bouavann said his government is satisfied with the SEATO declaration that the anti-Communist pact will "take whatever action may be appropriate" if international negotiations on Laos fail.

Though SEATO did not pledge to intervene with force if negotiations fail, Bouavann said, "the unanimity shown by the members shows a will to assist Laos in case of absolute necessity."

The Weather

Rain occasionally heavy at times in central Friday night; little temperature change Friday; cooler central Friday night; highs Friday 48-52; central; lows Friday night 35.

The temperature one year ago today was, high 76; low 38; two years ago, high 69; low 42; three years ago, high 54; low 38.

Lake of Oark stage: 54.7 feet; 5.3 below full reservoir; down 4.

Gordon, Recuperating From Wreck Injuries, Is Witness

VICTORY SMILES—City employees and Councilman O. K. Kitzelson, left, are all smiles behind a dike of planks and sandbags as they contemplated a successful battle to save Charles City, Ia., from a record crest of the Cedar river. Several hundred persons of the town had been evacuated from their homes but disaster was averted by extensive sandbagging of river levees. (NEA Telephoto)

Record Altitude

X15 Rocket Ship Climbs 31 Miles

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Test pilot Joe Walker flew the X-15 rocket ship a record 31 miles above the earth Thursday in a flight he described as "a cliff-hanger all the way."

First, he lost his cabin pressure seven minutes before his stubby-winged black dart was scheduled to drop away from the wing of a B-52 mother ship.

Then, seconds after dropping, his rocket engine started up briefly, then quit. Walker said "it felt like five hours" before he could get the engine started again. Actually, it was only a few seconds, and didn't disrupt the flight plan.

Walker ran into trouble again on the way down from the record height of 165,000 feet when he encountered buffeting forces at about 80,000 feet.

Walker told a news conference he could not explain the sudden pressures, which caused his craft to vibrate violently.

"I could tell you, though, I have never experienced anything like it," he said.

The buffeting ceased after a very short period, Walker said.

Rocket Shot Delayed By Tipton Youths

Technical difficulties have forced postponement of a rocket launching, originally planned for 2 p.m. Saturday, by six high school seniors at Tipton.

Joe Noynaert, school science instructor and supervisor of the project, said today no definite date could be set for the firing. "We hope it will be in the next few weeks," Noynaert added.

"Some part of the rocket doesn't seem to function properly," Noynaert said. "Also we have found that there is an apparent ruling governing such tests and we plan to wait for some sort of official go ahead."

The 78-inch rocket, powered with 10 pounds of incense dust and sulphur, is expected to reach a height of 3,000 feet carrying a field mouse as its passenger. Six boys, Larry Knipp, Everett O'Brien, Larry Petty, Larry Fairfax, Jim Kempf and Bobby Fischer, calling themselves the Tipton Rocket Society built the miniature model.

Noynaert said no protests for using a mouse as the rocket's passenger have been heard from humane factions. Similar experiments across the nation have brought cries of inhumane treatment to small animals used in the tests.

A parachute is devised to return the mouse to earth.

Building Manager Comes To Sedalia In Ambulance

The Pettis County Grand Jury had as one of the witnesses Thursday, August Gordon, manager of the Gordon Building, Third and Ohio, which has been under investigation in connection with an arson attempt made on Sunday, Feb. 12. Gordon, who manages the building for his wife, arrived in Sedalia about 1:15 o'clock from Kansas City in an ambulance and went before the jury about 1:30 o'clock.

Gordon, who is recuperating from injuries received in an automobile accident on U. S. Highway 50 several days ago while coming to Sedalia, has been a patient in the Menorah Hospital in Kansas City. He left the hospital in Kansas City, through special arrangements, for Sedalia about 11:15 a.m. Thursday. He was accompanied from the hospital by ambulance assistants and a doctor.

Some time ago Gordon had been requested to view Ralph Messina, charged with the attempted arson, to see if he could verify whether or not Messina might be the mysterious Abe Rosen. "Abe Rosen" is the name used, according to earlier reports from Gordon, as the man who rented the vacant rooms on the third floor of the Gordon Building in which were found several containers which had contained approximately 75 gallons of gasoline that had been poured over the floor, and a large lighted fuse.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said he did not know if Gordon had ever seen Messina, "but we gave them several pictures of the man for Gordon to look at." No information was given out as to whether or not Gordon had identified the pictures to the jury members.

The ambulance which brought Gordon to Sedalia was parked on Lamine to the east of the east-side entrance to the court house. He was wheeled on a stretcher to the court house elevator. He left the stretcher, as it was too large to be put on the elevator. A chair was placed in the elevator but Gordon elected to stand up until it reached the third floor. The stretcher was carried up the steps by ambulance attendants, where Gordon again laid down on it. It was then wheeled to the jury room.

After the session with the jury, Gordon took the elevator back down and this time used the chair to sit in during the brief ride. Gordon was met on his arrival by William F. Brown, attorney, who remained at the court house until after Gordon had been questioned. After Gordon had been taken back to the ambulance, it remained parked for about two minutes while Gordon and Brown conferred.

US To Cut Operations At 73 Sites

Eventual Savings Of $220 Million Per Year Are Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Seventy-three U.S. military bases and installations in this country and abroad were marked Thursday for closing or reduced operations.

The Defense Department announced 52 of the installations are in the United States and 21 are overseas.

A total of 15,000 civilians and military personnel in this country and about 19,000 overseas will be affected.

The action was described as the first phase of a sweeping program to gear defense to the nuclear age.

It is expected to bring about savings which eventually may reach an estimated $220 million a year.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara noted that the White House previously has announced plans to eliminate surplus or obsolete installations among the 6,700 bases at home and abroad.

A number of the domestic bases on Thursday's list are comparatively small. There were some fairly large ones too, such as the Army arsenal at Benicia, Calif., the Harlingen Air Force Base in Texas, and the Air Force base at Presque Isle, Maine.

Air Force navigators have been training at Harlingen, but with the shift of emphasis from manned bombers to missiles the navigators no longer are needed in such large numbers.

Presque Isle is the home of the only Snark long-range bombardment guided missile unit; which is being succeeded by longer-range ballistic missiles.

McNamara said the cutback operations will extend over three years and thus should not result in any sudden or critical impact on employees.

The secretary said the Defense Department will try to find new jobs for those whose positions are wiped out. Of the 15,000 affected in this country, about 9,000 are civilian employees and 6,000 are military.

The overseas bases, which will not be identified for another two or three weeks, employ about 4,000 civilians in addition to the 15,000 military personnel stationed there.

Making Shoes: 'Fascinating Business'

THE fascinating business of manufacturing shoes is old hat to probably as many as 700 individuals in Sedalia—those now working at Town & Country Shoes and those who have worked there in the past.

But to an individual who has never been inside a shoe factory it is amazing the number of different jobs that have to be performed and the number of hands a pair of shoes pass through before they end up in a box or on a shelf at some shoe store.

Since this is the season most everyone is taking a second look at shoe displays in store windows, it seems appropriate that The Democrat-Capital present a photographic tour of the plant showing some of the many tasks performed in making a pair of shoes.

An average of 2300 pairs of ladies shoes are turned out each day at Town & Country, and Vice President C. W. Mathieson reports the plant is running at full production with more than 450 employees on the job.

While our camera only took in nine different jobs that must be performed, behind these scenes are numerous personnel handling other tasks at Town & Country.

Similar plants are operated by the company in Slater, Odessa and Warrensburg. Sedalia is the company's main plant and its general offices are also located here.

Town & Country began operation on May 3, 1943. Virgil Lipscomb and C. W. Mathieson, who had been with other shoe companies, joined together to form Town & Country.

Town & Country has meant a great deal to Sedalia's progress because it has given employment to many people in the Sedalia and surrounding area, as well as bringing many new families to this city. Starting with only a few people, it has grown by leaps and bounds and along with it the beauty and variety of its women's shoes that are popular with women in many cities.

In 1952 Town & Country purchased the property at the corner of Main and Missouri in Sedalia, to house a heel processing unit and a unit for the manufacture of all bows, stripping and sundry items that formerly had been purchased. These units provided many additional jobs for people of Sedalia.

In late 1953 Town and Country purchased a second ultra-modern building across the street from the main factory building located on North Missouri, known as the Jerry Brown building.

This building provides 25,000 feet of floor space. It was extensively remodeled to suit the company's needs when in 1956 an additional 10,000 feet, all on one floor, was added to the west side of the original building.

In 1957, new modern administrative offices of 5,000 feet of floor space were added to the structure which today is used for general offices, upper leather department and in-stock operations. This points out the growth of the company since 1943, for the original factory building comprised 12,000 feet of floor space, while today the company operates in four buildings in Sedalia with a combined floor space area of 62,000 square feet.

"America's Best Fashion Shoe Value," is Town & Country's copyrighted slogan.

A complete line of women's dress and casual shoes, including low, medium and high heels are manufactured by the company and distributed by 1,000 of America's leading specialty and department stores located in major cities in every state in the union, including Hawaii and Alaska and seven foreign countries.

Silent Films Nostalgic For Some Viewers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—ABC's forthcoming series, "Silents Please," will be nostalgic trips into the past for older members of the TV audience, and amusing curiosities to the young crowd.

But Saul Turell, who produces the series of condensed vintage movies, likes to think that they are not only a fine source of income but an art conservation project.

In the early days something called nitrate film was used for movies. This type of film disintegrates slowly but unpredictably. And as it crumbles it becomes unusable and highly explosive and must be destroyed.

Turell collects old silent movies. He owns the entire libraries of the long-dead Biograph and Thomas Alva Edison companies and three years ago picked up, at public auction, rights to the D. W. Griffith classics including "Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance" and "Way Down East."

Turell explained that although "the Griffiths films cost a comparative song, it cost about $100,000 to have them reconstructed and transferred onto safety stock—the permanent type of film now used."

"Silents Please" had a successful though brief run last season and kicks off again Thursday night (10:30-11 Eastern Standard Time) with a sharply edited version of Douglas Fairbanks Sr. in "The Black Pirate," his most successful film.

In later weeks, such classics will be shown as "The Hunchback

THE BEGINNING OF A SHOE—Work on a shoe doesn't really begin here, but our photo series does. These sock linings are being "cased" to a customer's order by Rosie Seiving. Each pair of shoes, are, in reality, custom made at Town & Country, since the materials are selected for each as the shoes stop at various machines and departments along the route to a shoe box. The materials began their journey in the stock room and made their first stop in the cutting room.

HIGH HEELS—A pair of shoes get their high heels here from William Botcher. The heels are being attached on a "hot melt" machine.

of Notre Dame," with Lon Chaney; "The Eagle" with Rudolph Valentino and Vilma Banky; "Don Juan" with J. Barrymore; "Beau Geste" with Ronald Colman, and even the original "Ben-Hur" with Ramon Novarro.

Turell, although he owns thousands of feet of ancient movies, including the very first, "The Great Train Robbery," hunts for and wide for other famous flickers.

"Mary Pickford has gotten all of hers back—and she has a fortune in them," said Turell. "The only trouble is she won't allow any of them to be shown."

FANCY STITCHING—Shoe orders calling for fancy stitching get the treatment here by Iva Eckhoff who works in the fitting department.

QUALITY INSPECTION—Like most manufacturers of any product, quality inspection is an important job. Here, Pearl Bales and Mary Cusick, give some material a close going over. Any defects mean a rejection. Where possible, materials may be returned for minor repairs. These ladies' only concern is find out if something has gone wrong along the production line.

NOW COMES THE SOLE—Chuck Cusick of the Bottoming Department is the operator of this big machine. He is attaching the outsole to the upper portion of the shoe with cement and pressure. This is where the wooden last meets with the shoe. As seen here there is a size last for every shoe made at Town & Country. This one is stamped 8½ B.

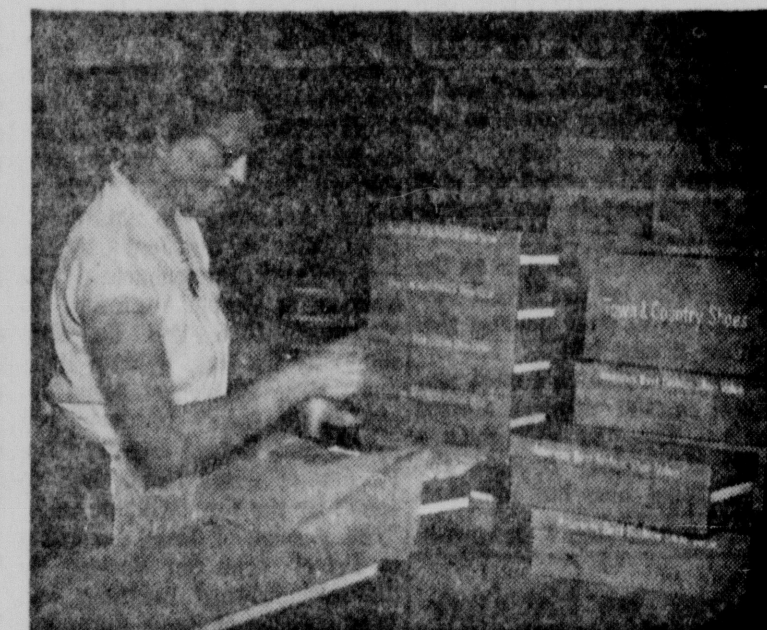

AWAY WITH THE LAST—James Mullins, Finishing Department, removes the wooden last as the shoe nears the end of the line and is nearly ready for the red and white Town & Country shoe box.

STAMPING LININGS—The lining of shoes are stamped with a size number as Dorothy Hill is doing here in the pre-fitting department. In addition to the size the case number (order number) and width are also stamped on the material. Materials are also matched here.

PULL-OVER MACHINE—Homer Embree, Lasting Department, operates the pull-over machine which anchors the ball portion of upper portion of shoes to the wooden last.

END OF THE LINE—This isn't quite the end of the line for the shoes, but it's the end of the line as far as the production people at Town & Country are concerned. They are now ready for someone perhaps as far away as England. The speed with which Elaine Young packs the shoes is exemplified by her hands and the shoes which appear as a blur. The Big Miniature Problems

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — "Just swallow the pill," the doctor said. "There. See. It's simple." And with that he turned on his TV screen to watch a live telecast of the patient's stomach — produced in living color by the tiny TV camera in the pill.

The TV pill isn't ready for broad use yet. But it's not far away either. This age of miniaturization, not quite 20 years old, is already mature — complete with its own special problems.

On the horizon or in limited use now, for example, are such things as:

A radio pill — an eighth-inch FM transmitter that will broadcast on-the-spot reports of internal conditions. And a microphone about 1/32nd of an inch thick, capable of entering the heart through an artery and broadcasting precise conditions.

Surgical needles and sutures small enough to repair a tiny blood vessel. A needle-point sized radiation instrument for the treatment of usually hidden and usually fatal brain tumors.

Hearing aid batteries the size of an aspirin. Hearing aids the size of a dime.

Radios the size of a cigarette package. Electronic computers as small as a loaf of bread. Electric motors housed in cubes smaller than dice.

And so on and on and on.

racles have come immense problems. According to Horace Gilbert, whose Miniature Precision Bearing Company is the founder of the annual Miniaturization Awards for the booming industry of the small:

* The comfortable tolerances and margins for error in the good, old big days have become the dimensions of the miniaturized replacements.

In everyday terms, Gilbert says, it's like being allowed a six-inch error per mile in one dimension and none in the other.

* Costs have to go up. A 20-cent part in standard size will be replaced by as much as a $2 part in the miniaturized.

Precision machinery has to do the job, Gilbert says. There is no way to beat it, no matter what country your plant is in, or how cheap the labor.

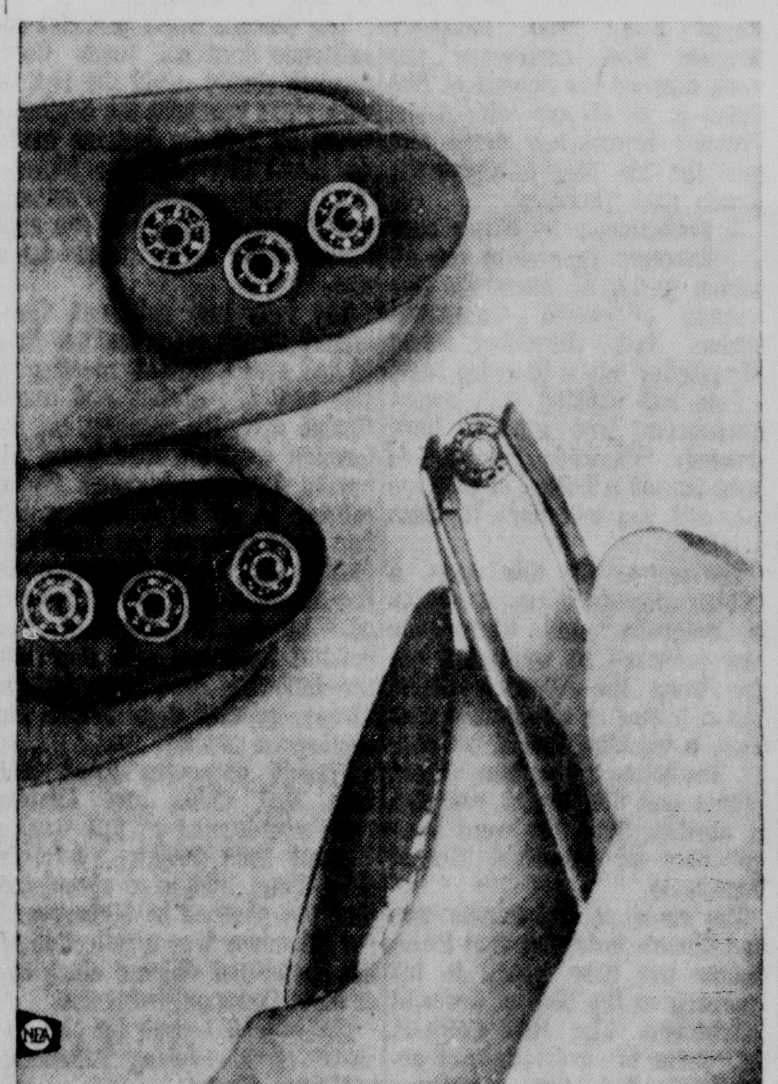

* Everything connected with miniaturization has to have new, smaller margins for error — with increasing costs.

Lubricating oil for miniaturized bearings, for example, has to be refined to where it costs $60 per ounce. Standard, high-grade lubricating oil, Gilbert says, has impurities in miniature use comparable to boulders in the path of a wheelbarrow.

* Work has to be done under minutely controlled conditions.

Atmospheric conditions alone can throw a miniaturized product off. Dust, dirt, a sneeze can make real trouble.

"And, of course, there are awful psychological hazards in the industry," Gilbert said. "Have you any idea what it feels like to spend all that time making something and then not be able to find it?"

Tourists Roam Over Grim Slave Island

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

GOREE ISLAND, Senegal (AP) — A grim dungeon on this sleepy, dust-covered island served as one of Africa's first links with the New World.

Thousands of black slaves from the African mainland, two miles away, passed through Goree's "transit camp," which is shown to tourists today as "Maison des Esclaves."

The trade was part of the triangular exchange between Africa, America and Europe, which eventually brought alcohol, firearms and textiles to the dark continent.

For more than two centuries, expanding colonial powers fought bitterly for strategically located Goree. The tiny island (900 by 300 yards) changed hands 10 times after its discovery by Portuguese adventurers in the 15th Century.

Once Naval Base

The French tricolor finally settled over it in 1802. In 1818, with the definite abolition of the slave trade, the island became a naval base charged with repression of slave traffic.

Now the green-white-red flag of the Republic of Senegal flies over the ancient Dutch, Portuguese and French fortifications.

A white-painted launch takes tourists from nearby Dakar to the rocky island. On the beach where swashbuckling adventurers once landed, girls in bikinis lie in the sun.

A Senegalese family has settled on the upper floor of the old slave house and a toothless Negro takes visitors around.

From a grim, dark, airless dungeon, the slaves were led through a small opening to boats that took them across the Atlantic.

Thousands died on the island of hunger and thirst and thousands more died during the crossing.

Few people live on Goree. The island was depopulated by assaults and yellow fever. Most of the picturesque, Spanish-style houses are abandoned.

The island lives up on Sunday, when tourists come to look at its past glory.

Some take pictures of old forts, others scratch their names on the walls of the slave house.

"The white man has changed," grins the toothless guide, stretching his hand for a tip.

ODD SHEEP

CHURCHVILLE, Va. (AP) — W. W. Ashby, Augusta County farmer, has one of the oddest flocks of sheep in the country. They were captured in 1958 on an island off the North Carolina coast and are thought to be survivors of a shipwreck. Ashby says they have extremely small bones and can run like deer.

Kennedy Mood Shifts Often In a Busy White House Day

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy comforted his heart-broken small daughter, had five stitches taken to close a deep cut over his left eye and dealt with an urgent national security problem.

In changing moods during more than 10 hours he was tender, solemn, smiling, all business, and wryly humorous.

He made final decisions on defense and foreign aid spending for the year starting July 1.

He charmed some Girl Scout visitors. He held a dozen or so conferences with about 30 government officials on a variety of domestic and international matters.

He went to the State Department to speak at a ceremony marking the 100th anniversary of the unification of Italy.

He was a genial host to 55 members of the House, Democrats and Republicans, at a coffee and cocktail reception. At this affair in the White House state dining room he wore a green carnation in his coat lapel, jumping the gun a bit on the St. Patrick's Day celebrations.

Kennedy did all this and much more Thursday, his 56th day in office, between the start of business at 9:44 a.m. and 7:56 p.m. when he left his office for the White House living quarters.

And just before that part of the day was done he relaxed on a sofa at his office fireplace for a moment and remarked that it had been "one of the easier days"—that most of the others had been a good deal rougher.

He noted that he had arrived at his office about an hour later than usual, and he pointed out that there had been more ceremonial functions than customary—the Italian function, the Girl Scouts and the reception for Congress members.

The President didn't mention it in talking of a late start, but he had been up until the small hours of the morning at a White House party he and Mrs. Kennedy gave for the First Lady's sister and her husband, Prince and Princess Radziwill. Reports were the President did a good bit of dancing at the gay affair.

At any rate, it was 9:42 a.m. when an elevator brought Kennedy to the ground floor of the White House from the living quarters on the second. This reporter, an Associated Press photographer, Henry Burroughs, another reporter and one other cameraman were waiting at the elevator door to spend a business day with the President.

When the door opened, there at her father's side was his wide-eyed daughter, three-year-old Caroline, cute in red overalls and a blue blouse. And there above the President's left eyebrow was a horizontal cut about an inch long, and a thin strip of tape in perpendicular position. The area around the cut was noticeably swollen.

Kennedy spotted the photographers with cameras poised, chuckled "oh, no," and hustled little Caroline back into the elevator. He didn't want the youngster included in this day with the newsmen.

Caroline wasn't concerned about that, but she did have her heart set on walking to the office with daddy. When she had to forego that she burst into tears and it took daddy a moment or two to comfort and quiet her. He did it with great tenderness.

On the walk from the White House proper to the west wing office area, the reporters popped the question: How had he gotten the cut?

"I was picking up something for Caroline and I leaned over and bumped a table," the President replied with a slow smile.

Had it required stitches?

"Oh, no—no stitches," he said.

He removed the adhesive tape when he went to the State Department at mid-morning. But when he returned to his office after lunch in the living quarters, there was a larger piece of tape across the cut and Kennedy reported that a physician had taken five stitches to close the cut.

On first arrival at the office at 9:44 a.m. Kennedy greeted appointments secretary Kenneth O'Donnell briskly and had him usher in Budget Director David Bell, Deputy Director Elmer Staats and chief presidential aide Theodore C. Sorensen.

Within a minute a conference was underway on budget problems. Kennedy fired questions rapidly and crisply standing at his desk. And he got terse, quick answers. He also made several quick decisions.

Kennedy was wearing a morning coat and striped trousers because he was going later to the ceremony at the State Department. The budget conference ended at 9:56 a.m. and a minute later Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg had been shown in.

"I want just 30 seconds," Goldberg greeted Kennedy, and then proceeded to discuss for a couple of minutes a piece of legislation pending in Congress.

Then Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges and Myer Feldman, Kennedy's deputy special counsel, joined the President and Goldberg.

"Do you know Secretary Goldberg?" Kennedy, eyes twinkling, asked Hodges who, of course, is well acquainted with the labor secretary.

Still standing, the men conferred quietly—again about pending legislation.

"Well, it's a difficult problem," remarks Kennedy. "Whatever we do here, they are going to say, 'Why don't we do it for others?'"

The conference ends and Kennedy steps into the adjoining office of his private secretary, Evelyn Lincoln, chats for a few seconds there with Sorensen, then goes on to the Cabinet room for a meeting on foreign aid. Present are Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Undersecretary George Ball, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, Bell and a few presidential aides. This conference lasts 22 minutes and the decision is made there, Kennedy reported later, on how much to spend on foreign aid.

While the session was in progress, Mrs. Kennedy—pert in a pastel green suit with matching hat—arrives with Caroline. They wait in Mrs. Lincoln's office and Mrs. Kennedy asks that the door to the President's office—where the photographers are—be closed. Kennedy returned presently, called "Hello, Frank" to Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. who had arrived to accompany the President to the State Department function honoring Italy.

"Let's go, Jackie," the President called to his wife in the next office.

Seventy minutes later Kennedy returned to his office. He conferred for 18 minutes with Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman, and Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., vice chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee. When Douglas noted that Kennedy was in morning coat and striped trousers, the President grinned and said: "Oh, this is the way I dress every day."

His next callers were West Virginia's Democratic senators, Jennings Randolph and Robert C. Byrd.

That conference — interrupted briefly while Kennedy took a phone call from aide Timothy Reardon — lasted 50 minutes and it dealt mainly with West Virginia problems.

Kennedy also had Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster in briefly to say goodbye. Goodpaster was former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff secretary and he stayed on to help Kennedy during the transition period. Now he is leaving for a new assignment in West Germany.

At 1:02 p.m. Kennedy returned to his living quarters for lunch, a rest and study of some documents — and, as it turned out, stitching of the cut above his eye.

On this walk to lunch Kennedy glanced through a memorandum from one of his aides. Chuckling, he reported the aide felt the new administration hasn't been putting out enough information about its activities.

The President said national security has to be taken into account more in these times than it did years ago and that it might well be a matter for concern if there were too much information now about defense matters. It wasn't clear whether the memo dealt with only the defense area of information.

Kennedy returned to his office at 3 p.m. He had changed to a navy blue business suit with a pin stripe.

He met for a half hour with Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. Reporters were permitted to look on from a distance in Kennedy's office for his first morning round of appointments, but they waited in O'Donnell's or joining offices while the President conferred with his advisers.

After the session with Eastland, Kennedy went out into the rose garden and greeted two Girl Scouts and two of their adult leaders. All four came back all excited. They gave the President a bouquet of yellow roses for his wife and a doll for Caroline.

Next Kennedy conferred briefly with Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, then the three moved into the Cabinet room and were joined by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and other unspecified administration officials.

It was at this meeting, which lasted almost an hour, that a "matter of urgency" in the national security field was discussed, Kennedy said at the end of the day. He did not elaborate.

At 5:40 p.m. that talk ended and the President started back to the White House proper, accompanied by Johnson and Lawrence F. O'Brien, White House aide in charge of job patronage and steering the President's legislative program through Congress.

They were bound for the state dining room and the first of Kennedy's coffee-cocktail receptions for members of Congress.

Kennedy returned to his office at 7:25 p.m., told the patiently waiting Mrs. Lincoln to get Rusk on the phone. The President and the secretary of state talked a few minutes, then Kennedy turned to signing letters and autographing photographs of himself to meet requests.

Then he remarked he didn't particularly care for a color photograph of himself and Mrs. Kennedy he was autographing for Sen. Eastland.

The signing chore done, Kennedy relaxed on the sofa and chatted. It was then he remarked this had been one of his easier days.

Was he through for the day? No, he replied, there would be some homework after dinner.

What time would he get to bed? Probably, he said, by 11:15 p.m. He started out the door. The phone rang, Mrs. Lincoln answered it and called him back. He talked about a minute without any indication of the caller's identity.

Then he started to dinner again—and this time he made it.

It was 7:56 p.m. as he disappeared into the night on the short walk outdoors to his living quarters.

Mrs. Jane Carpenter

Sedalia Woman, 99, Enjoys Anniversary With Friends

Mrs. Jane Carpenter, 1721 South Lamine, observed her 99th birthday anniversary March 11, with members of her family gathered for a dinner to help her celebrate.

Present were her son, Paul Carpenter, and his wife, Nina, of the home; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carpenter and Miss Glenn Dell Carpenter of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hare and sons, Mike and David, Lincoln, and Rebecca Ann Hare, Warrensburg; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hare and Gary, Danny and Debbie of Kansas City.

A special guest was William H. Cook, formerly of New York state and now of Hammond, La., who came for the occasion. His mother was the late Mrs. Belle Cook, sister of Mrs. Carpenter, who lived to be 103.

Mrs. Carpenter received many cards, gifts, flowers and callers on her special day, and sharing honors with her were her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles Carpenter, of Lincoln, whose birthday was March 9. Both were presented corsages and birthday cakes.

Mrs. Carpenter has never lost her sense of humor. She is alert, keeps up on the events of the day and apparently hears perfectly, so her conversation is mingled with happenings of yesterday, to day and tomorrow—and she is looking forward to the tomorrows that are going to bring her hundredth birthday.

"I was born in Pike County, Ill., March 11, 1862," she said, "and I was Jane Hand." She laughed merrily and commented: "I was a Hand and now I'm a Carpenter."

The family, natives of Missouri, moved back to Missouri from Illinois soon after she was born because the Civil War was on and her father was a soldier. She was the ninth child and when she was two years old, and not too long after the tenth child in the family was born, her mother died.

Mrs. Carpenter said she remembered that after her father came home from the war, bush whackers came to the house and were about to take him, when a man out in the crowd spoke up saying that he had a large family and he had done nothing wrong, so they went on and left him alone.

The family lived in the vicinity of Cole Camp and Ionia during the years and her father remarried. By this wife he had 12 children, making him the father of 22 children in all, with four sets of twins, two sets by the first wife, who was herself a twin, and two sets by the last wife.

By trade he was a plasterer and bricklayer, she said, and helped build Broadway School.

Mrs. Carpenter was married to her husband, James Carpenter, in arranged a screen test with Warner Brothers, and the world lost a dentist. The name Gail Shikles did not become famous, but the youth did under the name of Craig Stevens, and is known everywhere.

He married Alexis Smith and her parents live about five blocks from them, so, when his father retired after 39 years as an educator, Craig insisted they come there, too. They did and they, also, live only a few blocks away.

Mr. Hughes has pictures of Alexis, as well as Craig.

Although confined to his wheel chair with his hands crippled as well as his legs, Orlon Hughes, who came from Holden to Buena Vista six years ago, is a cheerful, happy person.

When someone asked him how he could always be so happy in the condition he is in, he told them that he didn't know anything else. He had been that way since he was 12 years old when he had polio. So while people who are able bodied go about complaining about their lot, he has found how to accept his life as it is and find the sunny side of whatever comes his way so that he has learned to live life to the fullest.

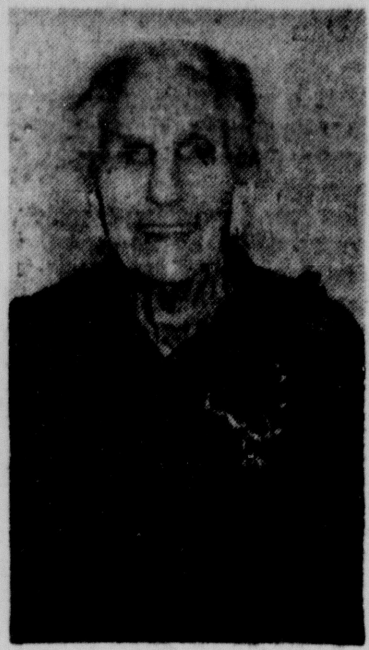

He had a letter that was 103 years old on lovely white stationery and with ink as plain as when it was written to his grandfather in 1858, from a girl in Tennessee.

"Grandfather had evidently proposed to her," laughed Hughes, "and she turned him down."

And so in Buena Vista lives Orlon Hughes, who looks back on his ancestors and what they did, with interest, laughing about things they do, proud and pleased members of his family and the with the success of his handsome nephew who takes time to remember him, and living his own quiet life, like the name of the home itself, Buena Vista, with a beautiful view.

Ionia, where they lived several years. He was a farmer, then they moved to Kansas City, where he worked as a teamster, later moving to Lincoln where he lived 42 years and where he died. She then moved to Sedalia. They were the parents of seven children, four boys and three girls.

The oldest daughter lives in the State of California, and a few years ago Mrs. Carpenter had an opportunity to go out with someone to visit her daughter. It was a three-day trip and they had ended the second day. "It won't be long now," she thought to herself. "We are almost there." But the next morning she fell on some steps and broke her leg. She was in California a year, and then the doctor found that the pin was too long, so they had to remedy it and that took another year. It seemed a long two years before she was able to come back to Missouri.

Mrs. Carpenter gets around the house fine with the aid of a walker. She uses it all the time for fear she might fall again. Many friends drop in to see her and often bring her gifts. Although she has had a great deal of sorrow, she looks on the bright side of life and sees funny things in almost everything. She does not see too good but otherwise she is fine and one of the things she enjoys are the sermons on radio. Ministers of several other faiths besides her own call on her and some of them visited her on her birthday. She got 76 birthday cards in all and many came on that day. "I just opened and opened and opened cards," she said. "I thought I would never get through. Most of them had 'eterns, too.'"

Well, only one more year and she will be 100, and then she will have a real celebration, at least that is what she is looking forward to.

'Peter Gunn' His Nephew

Uncle of a Famous TV Star Lives at Buena Vista Home

Sitting in a wheel chair at Buena Vista Home is a smiling, friendly man by the name of Orlon Hughes who is very proud of his famous nephew, Craig Stevens of the television show, "Peter Gunn."

Craig, who was born Gail Shikles in Kansas City, is the only child of Orlon Hughes' sister, and Hughes has many pictures of him around the room he shares at Buena Vista with another man, most of them tucked away in envelopes which he keeps near so that he can look at them or show them to visitors. In February Craig was in Kansas City but the time was so short and the activities, while he was there, so many that he didn't get down to Sedalia. He let his uncle know, however, that he was thinking about him, and had hoped he could come when he made this visit to Missouri, but it just didn't work out.

Hughes is never forgotten by Craig, for he very often sends him gifts of candy, fruit and his most recent gift, which was a short time ago, a box of candied fruit.

Craig's mother grew up in Holden and his father, who was a teacher in Kansas City, was born and raised near California, Mo.

It was when Craig reached college age and had plans for becoming a dentist that he appeared in a play at the University of Kansas City. A professor, noting the unusual talent in the handsome youth, wanted him to go to Hollywood for a screen test.

Craig laughed at him. Being a screen or television star was the farthest thing from his mind. He wouldn't even consider it. He wanted to do something with his life, he told the professor, he wanted to be a dentist.

That summer, however, his father planned to go to Los Angeles for a course of study, and the university professor was thrilled to hear the news. He told the father to be certain to take the boy with him, and that he would just happen to come out there, too, and arrange a screen test.

Business Tightening Belt In Attempt to Cut Expense

NEW YORK (AP)—Many executives in big corporations—juniors in the little factories—are cutting expenses these days.

An executive in Continental Can Co.'s New York office, snapping off an order for a company messenger, is asked by someone in the mailroom: "Is it absolutely necessary?"

An official of the Rheem Manufacturing Co., planning a phone call from New York to a subsidiary near Los Angeles, first tele-types this message: "I'll call you at 12:30 p.m., EST, station-to-station." Forewarned, the West Coast man is at the phone when the call is made, and the added expense of a person-to-person call is avoided.

The savings campaign has been intensified by the recession and the awareness that businesses have to be lean and hard now to meet the fierce competition for the consumer's dollar at home and from abroad.

But it is also part of a general and continuing program for better business methods. And what better way to operate than to pare away unnecessary fat?

So hundreds of companies, straining for breathing space as belts are tightened, are finding more ways to save pennies—pennies that pile up, as one company found out, to a saving of close to $1 million a year.

Executives have fixed a cold eye on what they feel is an expense of unnecessary, costly padding—plain fat accumulated in more self-indulgent times.

In effect, industry has gone on a diet.

In Albuquerque, N. M., employees of the Sandia Corp. now use bicycles instead of automobiles between divisions of their sprawling plant.

Nowhere are the changes more observable than in the reduction of administrative personnel, stricter controls of production and maintenance, and the elimination of expenses whose value cannot be proved.

AMA reports an increasing number of companies no longer hire employees to replace those who leave voluntarily. Some companies also are undoing the decentralization of control and authority.

Blue collar workers apparently have not been so specifically the object of cost cutters as have administrative employees.

Some companies, however, have stabilized work forces. Instead of the costly process of hiring, laying off and rehiring to adjust to economic conditions, they maintain a minimum number of workers. If necessary, these employees work overtime.

The same policy protects companies which foresee an increase in automation that might result in greater production without a corresponding increase in the work force. Notable examples are oil refineries and coal mines.

More responsibility also is being placed on shop personnel.

Wildlife Week Begins Today Over the Nation

Mayor Abe Silverman has issued a proclamation setting March 19-25 as National Wildlife Week in Sedalia.

Silverman's move was in conjunction with proclamations signed by city and state officials across the nation setting the week as a time to alert all citizens to the need for proper use of all natural resources.

The '61 wildlife week focuses attention on the necessity of long-range planning to provide for multiple use of our natural resources through balanced conservation planning for the future.

"All natural resources are closely related," the proclamation states, "and it is now more necessary than ever before that there be developed conservation practices which will provide the state and nation with quality and necessary quantity of water, food, fibre, fuel and recreation so that our growing population can maintain a standard of living that will strengthen and continue America's leadership in the free world."

Stalemate Develops In Paper's Newsroom

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A stalemate developed in the city room of the San Antonio Express and News Thursday.

"Lost: From my desk, one brass Chinese-type letter opener. Will give four passes to a drive-in theater as a reward," read a note posted on the bulletin board by fine arts editor Gerald Ashford.

Soon there appeared beneath his note this unsigned note:

"Lost: Four passes to a drive-in theater. Will give one brass Chinese-type letter opener for information leading to recovery of same."

Federal Telecommunication Laboratories recently told accountants and foremen to swap ideas. Foremen are encouraged to think in dollars and cents as well as in units produced.

Primary weapon used by retail stores is greater output, says George Plant of the National Retail Merchants Association.

Because of the changed hours, there has been a tendency not to rehire full time workers as replacements for those who leave voluntarily. "Part-time workers for peak hours have been found more effective," said Plant.

Predict a Light Vote in Windsor City Balloting

A light vote is predicted for the city and school election in Windsor Tuesday as a result of Republicans failing to nominate candidates.

It will make the second time within a week Republicans have let an election go by default. Last Tuesday Democratic township officers were unopposed.

The only Republican candidates Tuesday will be on the bi-partisan school board ballot. Mrs. Waldo P. Wheeler was named to succeed herself for another 3-year term and Arlo Vincent was endorsed for the remaining one year unexpired term of Forest Delozier who moved from the city.

Ralph Allen was nominated for another 3-year term by Democrats.

The school levy will be at stake in the election. Voters are being asked to approve the same operating levy as last year, $2.20 on the $100 assessed valuation.

The unopposed city candidates are: Mayor — H. J. Douglas; city marshal — Samuel W. Clark; police judge, Virgil Haase; city collector, Mrs. Ethel Mayfield and the following aldermen — First Ward — L. R. Houston; Second Ward — Leon Welborn; Third Ward — Harold Gehrig.

The three polling places City Hall in the First Ward, Missouri Public Service Co. in the Second Ward and the Walker Ford garage in the Third Ward, will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Plan 20-Story Office Building For St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A New York real estate and construction firm announced plans Thursday to build a $9,000,000, 20-story office structure in downtown St. Louis.

The new structure, proposed by Collins Tuttle and Co. of New York City, would be the first major office building erected in downtown St. Louis in more than 30 years.

$300,000 Issue In Green Ridge To Ballot May 2

The Board of Education of the Green Ridge R-VIII School District has set May 2 for a special election for the purpose of voting on a $300,000 bond issue to construct a new elementary and secondary classroom building.

The proposed building will be located on the present site and attached to the existing gymnasium. One wing of the structure will house the elementary grades while the high school classes will be housed in another wing extending in the opposite direction from the gymnasium. The new building also includes plans for a cafeteria and music room, office facilities, health room, library and special education room.

The assessed valuation of the Green Ridge School District with public utilities is in excess of $3,130,000 which means the proposed $300,000 bond issue is well under the constitutional limitations of 10 per cent of the total assessed valuation of the district.

Opening School Bids April 10 at Windsor

Sealed bids for the purchase of $255,000 in bonds to provide funds for the construction of a new elementary school at Windsor, will be opened April 10 by the Board of Education.

Five of the 255 bonds of $1,000 each, will become due on March 1, 1962 and on the same date in 1963. The last 20 bonds will be redeemable in 1981.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $5,100. The bonds will be delivered to the successful bidder on or before May 22.

Absentee Votes Clinch Approval of School

WEST PLAINS, Mo. (AP)—Absentee ballots counted Thursday clinched the approval of a new high school for Alton.

A special election on the $330,000 bond issue—defeated six times before—was held Saturday with the bonds winning by a margin of three votes.

The 230 absentee votes showed 220 in favor, 9 against and 1 rejected. That gave the issue 205 votes over the required two-thirds majority.

Nearly All Futures Prices Gain At Close

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market finally straightened out Thursday for a short but slow run into high ground on the Board of Trade.

After three successive steep declines which cleaned out at least two rather sizable accumulations of stop loss selling orders, prices apparently hit attractive levels shortly before the close of trading.

Through most of the day, the market shifted over a rather narrow range both above and below previous closes without showing any sign of a trend either way. Near the close, however, short covering for the long holiday weekend increased and nearly all contracts moved up. The only laggards were May wheat and oats. Because of the Good Friday observance, the exchange will be closed until Monday.

At the finish, soybeans were 1-2 1/4 cents a bushel higher, May 3.00 3/4; wheat 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, May 1.99 1/4-99; corn 3/4-1/2 higher, May 1.09 1/4-99; oats 1 cent lower to 1/2 cent higher, May 59 1/2-58; rye 1-1/4 higher, May 1.17 1/4.

Mennonite Man Will Keep Cash Bought at Sale

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — A Mennonite farmer, who had planned to return $1,000 he found in a box of trinkets bought for 10 cents at a public sale, has changed his mind and is going to keep the money.

Ben Zimmerman said Wednesday that when he learned the original owner of the box, Ira Stover, had no close heirs he decided to keep the money.

Zimmerman bought the trinkets last Saturday at a sale conducted by the executors of the Stover estate.

When he found the money later, he went to the estate's administrator and asked if everything in the box was his. According to Zimmerman, the administrator said yes.

"When I asked him about the money," said Zimmerman, "he didn't ask me to return it but said other money had been found in hiding places."
